

Bridge construction begins soon

Surveyors were on site at the Lake Street bridge this week. A final okay is needed from railroad officials before construction can begin on a new bridge. In the meantime, trees are being cut. The project is scheduled for completion in November. Rep. Jim Miceli has introduced a bill to name the bridge for former acting town manager Harold Melzar and Silvio DeNinno, both late residents of the Silver Lake area.

Jacobs Street residents to sue for sewer

by Arlene Surprenant
The residents of Jacobs Street are threatening to sue the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission for failure to bring a sewer line to their road and for subsequent decrease in their property values. The town's share ($17,000) of the required monies to help fund the sewer was appropriated through a betterment article at the 1985 annual Town Meeting but, to date, no line has been installed.

According to neighborhood spokesman Charles Stokes, three of the five residents have suffered ongoing problems with their septic systems and put up with flooding conditions by their property.

The neighbors, said Stokes, had expected a line to be put in in the early 1980's when nearby Faulkner, Cunningham, and all cross-roads except Jacobs were sewered under federal and state grants. Instead, their road was bypassed and it wasn't until neighbors agreed to go under the betterment program and pay for half the cost themselves that they saw hope of any action. That action was not forthcoming, claims Stokes, and neighbors are now being told the project is "on hold."

In a recent interview Stokes expressed bitter disappointment in state and town officials and impatience with the town meeting process.

"What's the sense of having town meetings if we can't get this through?" asked Stokes, who said he has made the rounds of local officials ever since. "When so-called selectmen and state reps are supposed to represent you and don't, you begin to wonder what you can do."

Stokes, the father of seven children and a Woburn policeman for 19 years, said neighbors last week hired attorney Tom Callahan from a Woburn law firm to represent them in the ensuing legal battle.

When contacted by the Town Crier, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski confirmed Stokes' version of the sewer line extension to Faulkner and Cunningham Streets.

Stapczynski said a system was designed in the late 1960's and early 1970's which "serviced the houses with the greatest need" and, "for whatever reasons," Jacobs Street was not one of the streets falling under the government funds. The Water and Sewer Commission, he added, made their decision based on the recommendation of the town engineer.

According to both Stapczynski and Water Commissioner George Allan, the work on both Jacobs Street and Cedar Street by Deming Way went out to bid together in 1986 because they were considered small jobs. Both jobs came in over bid.

Stapczynski claimed the town engineer underestimated the cost of the job. Great Northern Construction Co. came in with the lowest bid at $58,700. Because State Rep. Jim Miceli went after additional state funds for Cedar Street, that road is currently under construction. Jacobs Street remains on hold.

"There's no question the vote's legal but the money is insufficient," Stapczynski said, explaining the only thing left to do is hold another town meeting to appropriate more funds, have the neighbors agree to furnish still more money as their share of the cost, and re-bid the job. All of this will reportedly take valuable time.

"I can appreciate his (Stokes') problems," said Stapczynski, adding "I am interested in getting this thing going soon."

So, it seems, are Stokes and his neighbors who claim their patience is wearing a little thin.

"We can't go on like this, we really can't," said Stokes firmly.

Crowd condemns plans for Wilmington Center

by Arlene Surprenant
An overflow crowd heard a succession of residents express reservations and, at times, outright condemnation of state plans for a new Burlington Avenue Bridge and connecting roadways at a 25 percent design public hearing Monday night.

A few of the 28 residents who spoke asked questions centering on such issues as the proposal's effect on businessmen and homeowners in the area, emergency services and detour routes once the bridge is closed, traffic flow, and septic system and wetland concerns. The majority, however, felt as Fay DeAvignon of Church Street did that more information is needed and this is "a major investment with questionable returns."

George Joseph, of the Mass. Dept. of Public Works, conducted the hearing while engineer Joseph Libuda of Storch Associates explained the proposal.

In an engineering study conducted in 1981, said Libuda, the state found a major traffic bottleneck and safety problem in the center of town, an "antiquated" Burlington Avenue Bridge, and "narrow," steep approaches" to that bridge. Following detailed survey work and a traffic study update, added Libuda, preliminary design plans were formulated.

The plans call for the widening and realignment of existing roadways, the construction of a connector (bypass) road, bridge reconstruction, and the addition of traffic signals at key intersections.

According to state officials, the entire project will cost an estimated five million dollars and will be completed in one construction season. The state will provide all funding, 80 percent of which will be reimbursed by the Federal Highway Commission. Following the hearing, no major changes can be made to the plan, only "refinements."

Joseph was careful to explain that his department would take into account both oral testimony from the hearing as well as written comments received prior to April 9 in deciding whether to continue with the project or what parts of the plan to "refine." The only other alternative, he explained later in the evening, was to have the town, not the state, replace the bridge with existing dimensions. Also, he added, if the project is turned down, there would be no further attempt at traffic or other improvements in the area.

One problem with the state's

DPW hearing

"My name is Charlie Gilbert, and I live there," was what Charlie Gilbert told the DPW hearing on Wilmington Center Monday evening. In the sketch of the project in the background, his house is the small square closest to the upper corner of the filing folder.

proposal was stated best by Paul Godzyk who complained that "all you guys are going to do is make it (traffic) go in a circle."

Many who spoke out said the plan doesn't really ease traffic problems, but instead, moves the "bottleneck" closer to Dunkin' Donuts and Wilmington Plaza, thus aggravating present conditions. Planning board member Michael McCoy agreed with this thinking, saying the state is trying to "control our destiny" in bringing the town "back to square root one."

Another problem -- that of creating a "speedway" through town center and destroying the town's rural character -- was brought up by Wilmington Housing Authority member Dan Gillis.

"We want to keep our Wilmington looking nice -- do this and you destroy it," he told a receptive audience.

Attorney Roy Toulon agreed. He was attracted by Wilmington's "old New England town atmosphere," and asked if there was a comprehensive plan which covered both the traffic project and the revitalization of town center. The proposed relocation of town center fall under the jurisdiction of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority. WRA Chairman Jay Donovan said his board had been addressing both concerns with the traffic project and plans for a relocated town center. He added his board was prepared "to deal with any eventuality that comes about" as a result of town input at the hearing.

Perhaps the most professionally prepared presentation was offered by Fran Mauriello, plant manager of Diamond Crystal Salt.

Mauriello spoke of the "potentially devastating effect" of the plan on his company and showed architectural drawings to back up his words. He condemned the placement of a retaining wall, ensuing noise and fumes from nearby cars, the loss of a septic system and lower driveway, and the abrupt cessation of the widened road which he maintained, would create safety problems.

"This proposal could only bring on more problems rather than solve them," Mauriello told state officials.

Two people spoke out in favor of the proposal and what it was trying to address.

Rocco DePasquale, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, asked residents to look at "the positive side" and "the long term benefits" of the plan. He pointed out that the proposal would address one of the town's primary concerns: the quick movement of traffic through town center and a reduction in the number of cars.

Chamber of Commerce President Carolyn Santorsola read a statement originally read and endorsed at a May, 1986 Chamber meeting. She said her organization favored the Rt. 129 Project because it would achieve a more viable, aesthetic downtown business center, create a more positive

Graduation requirements reduced

The Wilmington School Committee voted last Wednesday to reduce minimum graduation requirements from 120 to 115 credits, after being in effect for only a few short years. In addition, members agreed to allow the substitution of an elective health course for one of the three required science courses in the high school curriculum.

Though Shirley Callan complained that "we're going around in circles" by reversing earlier decisions, Supt. Robert Horan maintained it was the committee's prerogative to make changes if something didn't work.

"The system is open to improvement" he told committee members. Horan added the trend two years ago didn't encompass a public awareness of health problems facing adolescents.

"I'm very happy to see 120 credits dropped to 115 tonight," Bridget Zukas said. She explained that, from the beginning, she felt the "struggling student" would be hurt by the stringent 120 requirement.

Ed Cuoco and Jeff St. Onge of the Student School Committee argued against the reduction of credits, saying it was "a poor idea" because it sets a precedent and may reduce the quality of instruction. However, fellow member Dorice Reitchel favored the move saying this would give seniors who work or participate in athletics a chance to take a study hall.

During the healthy exchange of ideas, Principal Paul Fleming strongly supported the change and suggested the extra five credits could go toward community related activities.

School budget gets fincom approval

by Arlene Surprenant
After three intensive meetings with school officials over a two week period, the Wilmington Finance Committee unanimously approved a final school department budget of $11,007,114 Tuesday night. This figure includes Supt. Robert Horan's $114,500 request for additional personnel for support services. Fincom members also agreed to a $126,474 figure for School Capital Equipment covered in warrant article seven.

The motion to recommend approval came from school liaison

Walter Kaminski, who told his board he made the motion because he felt the school system is well managed, the superintendent is comfortable with the budget, and the money is available.

Last Wednesday there was some confusion over whether the staff, overall, had been reduced by 10 teachers the previous year. On Thursday, school officials brought back statistics to show that indeed the cuts requested had been made. Horan, too, justified the need for additional nurses in all school buildings, a crisis intervention program at the intermediate level, part time counselors to aid at-risk students over the summer, and a health/substance abuse teacher. He told fincom members the support services recommended will come under continued scrutiny and review to make sure they are working out.

Jim Carroll last week said that according to quick calculations, if Fincom approves both the school department request and Shawsheen Tech recommendation, the town would be over the levy limit by approximately $304,000. However, it was noted Wilmington is receiving $368,823 more in estimated net state aid in fiscal 1988.

In other action last night (Tuesday), Fincom members unanimously approved Wilmington's assessment in the Shawsheen Tech FY 1988 budget. The $865,353 figure approved was the exact total recommended by Tech officials.

NEW RULES ON VACATION HOME RENTALS

Do you have a vacation home in the mountains or a cottage by the sea? And do you rent it out for extra income? Changes in the new tax law will probably affect you.

Last year, in order to qualify it as an investment property, you could not visit your vacation home for more than 14 days, or 10 percent of the rental period, except for occasional days for repairs. That way, you were able to deduct depreciation and expenses, even if they totaled more than the rental income.

This year the old rules hold only if your total income is under $100,000 and the expenses outrun income by less than $25,000. Offsets are limited for higher-income owners, unless offset against passive income.

The good news: you can take a longer vacation there this year, qualifying the property as a second home, and then you can deduct all taxes and mortgage interest on it.

June 6 - Academic Convocation for graduating seniors in the new gym

June 7 - Graduation, 2 p.m. on the athletic field (in case of rain, the ceremony will be held in the gym).

Woburn Street School

Students at the Woburn Street School were recently treated to a one day workshop on map skills. The workshop was run by the Compton Learning Co., a division of Encyclopedia Britannica Inc.

Teachers and students alike had favorable comments on the program and the two instructors who presented the lessons.

In-resident watercolorist Mark Carnegie demonstrated his artistic technique to students in kindergarten and grades four and five today (April 1). This was an enriching opportunity to watch an artist at work.

Fourth graders learned about a watercolor wash and studied the work of artist Piet Mondrian. Fifth graders have worked on actual watercolor paintings to show distance.

Upperclassmen at the school will be enjoying several educational trips in the near future.

Students in grades four and five will be attending the Youth Concert at Symphony Hall on Tuesday, April 7. Sixth graders will visit the JFK Library as well as attending a special performance of Yankee Doodle Dandy at the Berkeley Center for the Performing Arts in Boston on April 8. The trip will help focus students' attention on the 200th anniversary of the Constitution.

Don't miss the annual sports clash between the North and West Intermediate Schools next Monday, April 6, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the WHS gym.

Tickets may be purchased in advance or at the door Monday night for $2.00 (students) and $3.00 (adults). Besides some hard playing basketball, a few surprises are expected to keep fans on the edge of their seats.

Notices will be sent home with students this week. Volunteers to bake refreshments are needed. If you would like to make your culinary specialty, please contact someone in the school office.

Shawsheen School

There are dinosaurs aplenty as enthusiastic second graders at the Shawsheen School drew pictures and scenes depicting the prehistoric giants on skate boards, playing for the Boston Red Sox, and in traditional settings for the Fourth Annual International Dinosaur Art Contest.

The competition is sponsored by the Stovall Museum of Science and History in Norman, Oklahoma. Classes that submit their entries as a group will be rewarded with a classroom certificate and stickers for individual artists.

Art teachers Karen Larrabee supervised all entries for the competition. The artwork ties in with a unit on dinosaurs led by second grade teachers Mrs. Rowe, Mr. Barry, Mrs. Keeler, and Miss Peterson.

All drawings will be returned to the school in June and placed on display at the school's own Dinosaur Art Exhibit.

Mother Goose and Molly Pitcher, alias Marcia Perlmutter of the Characters Educational Theater, will be paying a visit to the Shawsheen School April 6 and 7, thanks to funds provided by the school PAC. Mother Goose will stop in to kindergarten and first grade classrooms while Molly Pitcher will talk to fifth and sixth graders.

The legendary Mother Goose was Elizabeth Vertigoose of Boston, who wrote many children's nursery rhymes, stories, and songs in the 1690's. She will encourage child participation.

Molly Pitcher, whose real name was Mary Hays, was an American Revolutionary War heroine and camp follower. She will tell of her experiences during the war, including both in battles and everyday camp life.

Mr. Jack Agati, of Encouraging Concepts Associates, will present session three of WHY DO KIDS DO THE THINGS THEY DO? This session will be sponsored by the school PAC on Monday, April 6 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Mr. Agati's first two presentations helped parents and teachers better understand children's characteristics based on their birth order and the goals of their misbehaviors.

This third presentation will develop practical and useful techniques to manage misbehavior. The approach stresses one's right of decision. Parents and teachers of all three elementary schools are invited to attend this enlightening evening.

Wildwood School

On Thursday, March 19, students participated in the Weekly Reader balloon launch. One of the balloons was found the day of the launch in Kingston, Mass.; another response has arrived from Plymouth. Several cards were returned by local residents. Thanks to the following mothers for their hard work which made the balloon launch a success: Judy Austin, Barbara Bishop, Linda Bouchie, Cynthia Jones, Phyllis LaCava, Maureen McDonald, Ann Pinkham, Donna Smith, Marcella Sweet, and Jean Woodbury.

The third meeting of the School Improvement Committee (Chapter 188) was held on Thursday, March 19. The next meeting is scheduled for Wed., April 1, at 4:30 p.m. at the Roman House. The meeting is open to the public.

Two members of the Harlem Magicians demonstrated their skills at Wildwood last Thursday. Teachers MaryLou Sousa and Doug Anderson delighted the students by volunteering to learn techniques from the players. Mr. Anderson and Mr. Smith, sixth grade teachers, took part in the game that night. Mr. Anderson's sixth grade class is busy preparing the next edition of the school newspaper, The Wildwood Wind.

On April 6 students in grades three through six will be attending a physical science show put on by the staff of the Science Museum. This show will take place in the school cafeteria at 10:30 a.m.

Letters to follow up basic skills test results

by Arlene Surprenant
Letters are expected to go home to parents of third, sixth, and ninth graders this week summarizing their child's mastery of basic skills considered essential for success in regular classwork.

The letters are a follow-up to a basic skills test in reading, math, and writing administered to children in the above three grades last October. This test will be given on an annual basis by the Massachusetts Department of Education as mandated by the School Improvement Act. Last April's state curriculum assessment tests will only be offered every other year.

According to School Supt. Robert Horan, Wilmington students scored well above the state average and were on a par with, and in some cases, above towns sharing the same socio-economic background.

"We did very well," said Horan last week, adding, "We expected to do well and we did."

The purpose of the basic skills test is to identify students who might be having difficulty in mastering basic subjects and suggest follow-up help so they can achieve a measure of success. The tests measure minimum competency.

This year's results will help establish a statewide standard for the 1987 exam. The math and

An evening of fine art

Hurry! There is still time to sign up for the gala evening being planned to Boston's Museum of Fine Arts Wednesday, May 6.

For $17.50 per person, residents can enjoy a chicken cordon bleu dinner at the museum's dining room plus a tour of the museum's many fine art exhibits. A second option open to the public is to skip the meal and enjoy the museum for only $6.00 per person.

The trip is being sponsored by the Wilmington Council for the Arts. The bus will leave the Wilmington Art Center (old town hall) promptly at 5 p.m. and return to Wilmington approximately 10 p.m.

Don't miss out on this enlightening, cultural, and social opportunity. Contact Annette Campbell (658-2404) for reservations and further details.

reading portions in the 1986 exam were measured against three possible standards which might have been set - 60, 70, and 80 percent. The writing test was based on a pass-fail system with each student writing on a different topic according to his school. The writing samples, said Horan, were the hardest to compare.

In the past year, school officials have concentrated more effort on improving math scores system-wide. Horan explained that now they hope, too, to focus more attention on writing, which he views as a "critical area."

"The most important thing we can do now is help those who didn't do well on the tests," Horan told the Town Crier. To this end, a structured course to improve basic skills will be offered five days a week at the intermediate level next September and extra tutoring will be available in the elementary schools. Additional help will also be made available to ninth graders experiencing problems.

Suspended students are mostly repeaters

by Arlene Surprenant
Though a total of 177 students have been placed in the in-school suspension program at the high school in the past six months, most of those, school committeemen learned last Wednesday, are repeaters and hard core discipline problems. The rest, say high school administrators, are being helped through the efforts of room monitor Steve Scanlon.

The program has been in effect the past few years to deal with students who would otherwise be suspended out of school instead of on an in-house basis. Principal Paul Fleming and Assistant Principals Jack Lynch and Ed Woods fill out detailed monthly reports on students who break the rules and fall under the program.

During a review of the program at last week's school committee meeting, Lynch said "we're trying to refrain from out of school suspensions" except in severe cases like swearing and leaving school without permission.

Woods said that though parents of repeat offenders are often frustrated, his general impression is parental involvement has increased and parents are "quite aware of what's going on." He added sometimes parents come in asking for more help than the school can give and he is forced to tell them "we can only do so much."

Both assistants claimed discipline problems begin at an early age and peak at the high school level.

School committeemen were most interested in how the program works and if it was living up to expectations.

Scanlon explained students who are assigned to him begin their classwork as soon as they come in. Sometimes informal discussions crop up. When Shirley Callan asked what happens when a youngster is failing a subject and needs help, Scanlon said he usually sends him to the resource room or back to his regular class.

The average number of students in the program at one time is usually between six to eight pupils, but Scanlon added he has had as many as 20 students at one time.

Fleming pointed out that in this setting, students who may not be used to concentrating are required to do just that. Often, Woods added, being in one room all day is a big deterrent.

Administrators praised Scanlon for his efforts and ability to relate well to teenagers. To improve the program, they asked that Scanlon be afforded some in-service counseling courses. They also said more involvement with industries in town and a group (peer) counseling component at the high school might be helpful to problem students.

Project seems dead -- for now

It is now quite likely that the proposed reconstruction of Route 129 in Wilmington Center is a dead issue. The sentiment of people at Monday night's hearing was overwhelmingly against the project.

The project has been years in the making, and there are few people who wouldn't agree that something has to be done, if not for traffic flow, at least for the replacement of the Burlington Avenue bridge.

The people at the hearing, though, seemed to be of the opinion that the project was a tremendous overkill of what was needed. After knocking out 17 buildings in the center of town, the highway engineers would then build a large bridge that would dominate the area.

When asked if there was an alternative, George Josephs of the D.P.W. said that a replacement of the Burlington Avenue bridge could be built. It seems that this might be the option which will eventually be taken.

The task of improving the roads in Wilmington Center is by no means an easy one. The crossroads is on a small hill, an artificial hill built as an approach to the Burlington Avenue bridge. On that hill are built several buildings. Any attempt to change the center would affect those buildings.

Many attempts have been made to change the center, the first being in the late 1920's. The problem is that as time passes, both the need and the difficulty become greater. Traffic gets worse, and development density increases.

One basic rule of construction is that the longer you wait, the more it will cost. The present proposal is called a $5 million job, although John Forrest speculated that just the land taking would cost that.

In the early 1970's, Fred Cain had laid out a route around the center, a route which would have paralleled Main Street from McNamara Tire to Lowell Street. The cost of the project was to be $400,000.

It is quite certain that if the current project is killed, it will remain dead for quite a while. The Mass. D.P.W., having spent untold thousands in engineering costs, is unlikely to ask the town to take a project it does not want.

But sometime in the future, it will be back. The traffic will be twice as bad as it is now. The cost of the project will make $5 million look like a bargain. And it will probably be shot down again.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

"Our principle (sic) objectives are not only to build an efficient system of highways, but also to be fair and considerate of your rights as a citizen of Massachusetts." That's what it said on paragraph two of the cover letter to the report which was passed out at Tuesday night's meeting on the reconstruction of Wilmington Center. And that brief statement in and of itself denotes the principle objections to the proposed reconstruction -- Wilmington is not suited to the reckless expansion of highways.

As you sat there in the cafeteria of the Glen Road School/Temporary Town Hall, it didn't take too much effort to figure out that an overwhelming majority of the residents present in the large crowd were vehemently opposed to the plans as presented at the Design Public Hearing. The reasons for this are simple. The plans fail to recognize a basic philosophy out there. It's not a bad philosophy, but simply a desire on the part of people to keep Wilmington looking like a suburban community, which is the principal reason for a lot of families making their homes here in the first place. And one of the ways you don't achieve that is through building overpasses, underpasses, around passes, and every-which-way passes.

Accordingly, the Department of Public Works plans are well described as detrimental to the small town atmosphere which we should well have a right to cherish. The present center would be marked by an actual overpass, connecting Burlington Avenue with Church Street. As for Main St., it would be depressed, so that the traffic flowing between Burlington Ave. and Church St. would be elevated above it. How picturesque!

A few years back there was a popular bumper sticker around these parts saying 'I Survived Billerica Center', which was a reference to the construction project undertaken in the center of that town. Here in Wilmington, a sticker might have to be printed saying 'I Didn't Survive Wilmington Center'. In fact, now it's a little easier to relate to the protests of some people in Boston who have spoken against the depression of the central artery. As is the case there, we have to take a look at the cost benefit ratio, and whether or not a construction project in the end is really worth it, or if it may so drastically alter the character of the place you call home that it's just a bad idea. What we all saw Tuesday night is a bad idea.

Were the D.P.W. plans to be executed, the principal negative effect would be a drastic change in the status of Wilmington as a small bedroom community. And, should the present residents and taxpayers be opposed to that change, so be it -- that's what we call democracy and home rule. An overpass cutting through the center of town is something we can easily live without, as 'Storrow Drive architecture' is better left in Boston, which is what most people are trying to get away from when they come to a suburban town in the first place. In other words, there is such a thing as segregating your rural areas from your urban ones, and we do this for the benefit of quality of life. When someone comes along and proposes a construction project which is totally contrary to that quality of life, they should be well prepared for a good deal of protest.

So the next step is how to deal with that protest. First, you hopefully take heed of it. That means the D.P.W. making some major alterations in their plans, to say the least. Traffic is a problem, but the D.P.W. should have the expertise to help us solve it through more reasonable approaches such as a moderate expansion of the Burlington Ave. Bridge as it presently exists, as well as the Butters Row Bridge. Secondly, we might want to take a careful look at Route 38 directly in front of Wilmington Ford. There is an area which suffers greatly from traffic snarls, as people attempt to exit and enter Wilmington Plaza. A widening of the road in that 'bottle-neck area' would be helpful. In contrast, the D.P.W. proposed reconstruction is sort of like shooting a mouse with an elephant gun. Overpasses, connector roads, and depressions are a radical change to the town, and are in no way 'fair and considerate of your rights'.

Wilmington Center: The other side

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington Monday night may have lost its one chance to make its downtown business area a vital center of pleasing aesthetics and expanded parking facilities.

A large group of our more vocal citizenry gathered at town hall to make sure state officials knew they didn't want any part of their flawed Route 129 traffic project. The concerns voiced were legitimate. The flaws pointed out were obvious.

For instance, one rendering of a large bridge over a four-lane Route 38 "highway" below certainly may not be conducive to keeping a rural flavor in our town. Traffic would indeed be re-routed from Kirk Street to Middlesex Avenue and back to Main Street with a bypass system installed. Plans would present a hardship to businessmen and homeowners currently living in the center area.

Questions raised on septic relocation and possible town sewers, wetland protection, car fumes, traffic flow, detours during construction, and town center revitalization were all well taken.

What most disturbed this observer, however, was the fact that with the exception of one selectman and the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, no one saw fit to address the obvious: that the project could indeed benefit our town.

For years, new homeowners as well as old "townies" have complained loudly about the "parking lot syndrome" along Main Street come rush hour. There have been overriding concerns at many town meetings about traffic flow in town, especially being so accessible to out of town traffic from Route 93. When the New Boston Street Bridge opens, when and if the Ristuccia Exposition Center is allowed other uses for its facility seven days a week, when industrial and residential growth continues at an ever increasing pace, traffic problems in this town will only worsen. As the old adage goes: "You ain't seen nothing yet."

This plan, as in other towns, would redirect traffic flow to some extent. If the road were widened to four lanes in the center area as well as in front of Demoulas Plaza, as is now being proposed, residents as well as emergency vehicles might stand a chance of getting from one end of town to the other in something approaching record time.

This plan would also open the door for a possible re-location and beautification of the center area. With some thoughtful planning, Wilmington could keep its rural character and yet add a pleasing, more uniform country charm to buildings as well as create a park and a much needed parking lot in the area.

Nothing is perfect. Change is never easy. To date, this is the ONLY plan in existence to widen our outdated main road and allow some far sighted thinking on what Wilmington's downtown could become. Without this plan, whose bill is entirely footed by our state and federal governments, we have nothing. State officials have said as much.

Some people said Monday they prefer it that way. It is curious, though, that not one of these residents, with the exception of business owners who certainly will carry the burden of any change, cared enough to come out and express their concerns at numerous redevelopment authority and selectmen meetings in the past one and a half years. The lack of interest in this project, until Monday, was appalling.

There is still time for the rest of you to speak out, either pro or con. Go today to town hall (room 9) or the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce offices over Mr. Spumoni's to view the model and maps on the project. Then express your INFORMED concerns BEFORE April 9 to Chief Engineer Robert Johnson at the following address:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Dept. of Public Works
10 Park Plaza
Boston, Mass 02116

Let's make sure our comments are a true representation of Wilmington's citizens and not just the view of a few. Such a major, long awaited project deserves nothing less.

Sunday morning in Wilmington Center -- the parking lots are empty and the traffic is light. This aerial photo was taken from over the Diamond Crystal plant looking north. The fire station and Masonic Hall are at

The Humble Farmer

The PTL Club

There were tears in the young woman's eyes as she pushed a shopping cart down the nearly deserted aisle. Our hands touched as we reached for the last box of Wheaties with the prize inside.

"Go ahead--take them," I said gallantly. "Nothing to get upset over. Look. I can get by with Rolled Oats."

She shook her head. "It's not the cereal. It's my husband."

"Report the brute," I shouted.

"For wanting to preach on TV?"

"You're upset because your husband wants to become a TV minister?" I shrugged my shoulders and started to walk off.

"Wait. I've got to talk to someone. You don't know what that means, do you? I suppose you've never heard of Jim Bakker."

"No, I can see you haven't. Jim Bakker is a big-time evangelist who runs a show on TV called the PTL Club. According to the papers, he's just been blackmailed after a sexual encounter."

"Why should this upset you?" I asked.

"Men are only human and evangelists seem to be more human than others. If my husband gets in with that crowd I might as well kiss him goodbye."

"It's a good life until they get caught," I said helpfully.

"I know. I'm kind of torn two ways. Two or three luxury homes around the country would be nice. Cadillacs. And my husband would be able to transmit his fundamental values."

"That's not all that gets transmitted nowadays," I thought to myself.

"Unfortunately, the pulpit is not a perfect moral vacuum, completely uncontaminated by the spiritual or human values of others."

I said, "You're obviously concerned with the human element."

"Haven't you ever seen teenage girls throwing themselves at the feet of a fundamentalist minister as the police drag him off to jail?" she cried. "From what I've seen on just the local TV news, a backwoods preacher's lifestyle breeds more intrigue than any two soap operas. Imagine the temptation when you are on nationwide TV asking for millions."

"I take it that you're not very religious," I said.

"Listen. You've heard of 'copycat' this and that. I'll bet every one of those big time preachers has a dozen little blossoms eager to bear fruit. I'll bet the virtue of my maiden aunt that this will bring them out. The Moral Majority is my name for the great and good who haven't been caught yet."

"Preachers who have been caught with their hands thrust deep in the cookie jar always look so repentant," I observed.

"That's an old scam that turns the trickle of money from lonely women into a stream. Their checks are actually saying, 'You're a good man and I'm available for a little ecumenical movement.'"

"You sound cynical beyond your years," I observed.

"Don't think that Bakker is the evangelist with a Jezebel fund," she cried. "Watch for the copycat. You have heard of the preachers' 'Who's Hot and Who's Not' newsletter? Keeps those evangelists toiling in the field from wasting their substance on the wrong person."

My eyes opened wide. "I always thought it was a list of folks headed to heaven or the other place," I gasped.

"Some humanists are now putting their kids in the other room when these dynamic evangelistic shout 'PTL' on TV."

"There's no need of that kind of talk on TV," I cried. "Bring back the days when Ed Sullivan cut off Elvis' pelvis." I lowered my voice. "What does PTL stand for, anyway?"

"According to my husband it's 'Pay The Lady.'"

All Wilmington bridges to be removed

In order to avoid future problems with Wilmington bridges being closed because of fires or train accidents, the Board of Selectmen has voted to destroy all of the Town's bridges. When asked about the vote, a member of the Board explained that there was never any problems in the past with horse drawn wagons getting hit by trains so there should be no problem now because cars can cross the tracks much faster than a horse drawn cart.

In order to insure resident safety, Board of Selectmen's relatives will be hired to stand at all crossings with a red lantern to prevent possible accidents. When asked about charges of nepotism, a spokesman said: "public safety is more important than nepotism; besides it gets the kids out of the house."

Silver Lake Monster sighted again

Now that the ice is starting to leave Silver Lake, the police have been swamped with calls from people claiming to have seen 'Lucky the Lake monster walking on the main beach. A department spokesman said he believes that Lucky probably is confusing the boulders placed near the beach parking lot with what she thinks are her eggs.

Because of this, the public works department will be removing the rocks soon.

Political signs limited

Due to confusing regulations, the Building Inspector has issued regulations clarifying the rules on political signs. The inspector advised that the regulations would become effective immediately and would be strictly enforced.

1. All signs must be the same color for all candidates.

2. No sign can be smaller than four feet by eight feet nor any larger than a normal two family house.

3. The only place in town that the signs can be placed is the old town dump off Old Main Street.

4. The dump will be open between the hours of 1:00 and 3:00 a.m. daily, for residents to view the signs.

5. Losers must remove not only their signs, but also the winners' signs.

Town Crier to publish daily

Citing the fact that there is just too much news recently to fit in all those little columns once a week, the Town Crier Editor announced that the paper will now be published daily, Monday through Saturday, rather than on the old once a week schedule.

When asked if it would be too difficult to put out a paper so frequently, the editor replied: "We now issue a paper with about 18 pages once a week. We felt that it would be much easier to break that up into a three page paper six times a week. In this way, people would not get bored waiting for the weekly edition, but could spend a little time each day to stay current." When asked how a three page paper could be published, the Editor advised that the paper is now computerized, and everyone knows that you can do anything you want with a computer.

"This is just the first step in our plans for growth," said the Editor. "Our long range plans are to put a computer terminal in every subscriber's home allowing them to get the news immediately and at their convenience. Besides, charging 50 cents every time they play the flight simulator game on our computer should more than pay for the computer terminals."

Criteria established for Townie status

"Everything thinks they're a Townie, and somethin's gotta be done." This was the comment by the president of the Nobody Underestimates a Townie Society (NUTS) last week in a press conference. "We now go these here rules that youze people gotta live to."

1. Nobody can be a Townie by marrying a Townie unless the spouse is a blood relative.

2. A Townie must understand the Town Crier's 25 years ago column, when he can find someone to read it to him.

3. A real Townie must have attended Wilmington High school at least half way through the freshman year.

4. A Townie must know the title of the remaining uncolored book in the library.

5. A Townie will be stripped of his title, if he at all cares if he is a Townie.

Thisotta stop these out-of-town-ers from moving in and thinking that they own the place." The NUTS spokesman said. "Real people don't cause this kinda trouble. Just don't use my name in the paper."

Cable tv access force announces studio locations

After a thorough investigation of locations to place the new Cable TV studios, the access force has decided on the following places: Michael's Place, Rocco's, Mancini's and Stello's. "We have decided, that these are the best places to locate the studios because we have found that Wilmington residents who have been watching locally produced shows have, among other things, learned how to spin a pizza.

Locally produced shows, will contain segments of Italian cooking. We've even been thinking of calling the local network 'WPSG' for Wilmington Pizza, Spaghetti, and Grinders."

When asked if Dunkin' Donuts had been considered, a spokesperson replied that "the police department did not want us to tape shows there for fear that too many department members would be seen in the background."

Temporary town hall to become permanent

Town officials today announced that the Town Hall on Glen Road, which has been temporary for the last few years, will be made the permanent Town Hall. The Town Manager commented that, "We investigated all of the possible options for building a new Town Hall but concluded the expense to the taxpayers would be too high."

Quoting Alexis de Tocqueville, the TM went on, "Town Halls should always be round to keep taxpayers from being able to corner any official in them," besides we couldn't get a square deal from any contractor in the State.

Firebug caught

Wilmington Fire and Police personnel in a cooperative effort to nab a local pyromaniac, announced success today. "We received an anonymous call that the suspect was spotted crossing the town common," said Deputy Chief Swords. "We instantly called the police for

"Speaking for Spot, I can surely say that the scheme to surround the spotted schnauzer Spot, was simply a segment of the service supplied by this section," said Sarge. "Remind me to tell you sometime how we pursued the purloined purple python, Peter."

A SELECTMAN WHO WILL LEAD

Wilmington needs a selectman who is a Leader. Someone with the courage, independence and knowledge to take a stand on tough issues.

Tony Accardi will be that leader.

He will be a leader against 'apartment complexes' in Wilmington and a strong advocate for the protection of our water system. Tony will fight hard for more housing for our elderly and to solve our increasing traffic problems. He will be a leader for the neighborhood people, who are being victimized by uncontrolled development.

As a public official, Tony has earned the reputation of being a strong leader who stands up for what he believes is best for the people of Wilmington.

TMHS announces scholarship guidelines

Mrs. Priscilla Betses, director of guidance of Tewksbury Public Schools, has announced the annual procedure for filing for scholarship money. Tewksbury Memorial High School parents and students are informed that applications for scholarships may be obtained in the high school guidance office at this time. These applications are for Tewksbury Memorial High School students only!

Private school students should contact their own guidance offices and/or the organizations giving the scholarship award. The application is sanctioned for all awards. By April 28, 1987, all completed applications must be given to Mrs. Florence Antonuk in the guidance department at the high school.

Upon receipt of the application, the guidance director, with the assistance of the guidance secretary, compiles a master list with the pertinent information taken directly from each student's application form. Some of the scholarship criteria found on this master list are as follows:

1. code number assigned to a student
2. college board scores (verbal and mathematics)
3. rank in class
4. major area of study in college
5. financial need (as determined by the application)
6. college to which student has been accepted
7. financial aid received at the time of application

Each scholarship presented will designate a committee of his/her choosing. This committee will then meet with Mrs. Priscilla Betses or her representative to select a student for the award from the completed list. Please a note that no names are presented to the committee, only code numbers. In some instances, if the organization so wishes, members of the faculty or the guidance department may be appointed to make the selection.

All scholarship awards will be presented at the Senior Awards Night. If any organization wishes to award a scholarship, please contact Mrs. Betses at 851-3771 as soon as possible.

ACT plans open meeting in Tewksbury

The steering committee of the Associated Citizens of Tewksbury (ACT) met Tuesday evening, March 10 to decide activities for this spring. Although a Candidates' Night had been endorsed by the membership, the lack of contested seats for the election makes that less appealing. As an alternative, plans for an open meeting involving areas of interest in town government, were discussed.

More details will follow. Other items on the agenda included:

1. A description of the proposed Assembly of God Church on Andover Street.
2. Proposed rezoning of residential property along North/Andover Street to business zone. Will come to town meeting.
3. Rezoning request for MFD in order to build condominiums on Pleasant Street next to Roper Estates. Comes to town meeting.

4. Amendment to zoning bylaw regarding solid waste resource recovery facility. Dump issues discussed.

5. Telephone Committee being formed by ACT. Volunteers welcome!

6. Dues for ACT now due for 1987. Please make checks payable to ACT and mail to Bev Bennett; 1493 Andover St., Tewksbury, MA 01876. Dues are $5 per person.

Membership in ACT is ongoing, and interested people are urged to contact Eileen at 851-6076 or Louise at 851-7964.

The next meeting will be held March 31. Topics for discussion are welcome.

Deadline on Friday for Arts Lottery

The Wilmington Council for the Arts has announced that it has available for distribution $3,232 in the Arts Lottery Program for the July 1987 funding cycle. The Council has also been allotted $798 for the Performing Arts Student Series (PASS) program which will provide funding for public school children to attend performing arts events.

The Arts Lottery has proven to be an effective avenue for supporting and encouraging the arts in each community in our state. The Wilmington Council for the Arts is proud to continue to fund the talented and committed artists and cultural organizations in Wilmington. Through the Arts Lottery we can offer more programs and can make possible creative arts and humanities projects that involve more of our residents in cultural activities.

Applications for the regular lottery funds are in the library and the town hall. PASS applications may be obtained at the schools or by calling Chairman Ballou at 657-4817.

To be considered for funds, all complete forms must be typed and returned to the Wilmington Council for the Arts no later than April 10, 1987.

Deadline Friday for Good Guy nominations

Friday is the deadline for submitting nominations for the Good Guy award.

The award is given annually to a Wilmington resident who "goes the extra mile" for the community. The award, now in its 19th year, is chosen and presented by the previous recipients.

LWV candidates' night April 9

The League of Women Voters of Wilmington has invited the public to meet the candidates for local office on Thursday, April 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of Wilmington memorial Library. Candidates for selectmen, school committee, housing authority, redevelopment authority, and moderator have been invited to answer questions from the League and the audience. How do the candidates feel about the development of a Wilmington Electric Company? What is their vision of an ideal business center, given the proposed physical layout of the intersections of Routes 62 and 129? How should Wilmington's Housing needs be addressed? What effect, if any will our results on the state curriculum assessment tests have on education in the Wilmington schools?

Voters can hear the candidates address these issues and many more during what promises to be an interesting and informative evening. The program will be followed by an informal coffee hour to give citizens the opportunity to meet the candidates on a more personal level.

'Inside/Out' at TMHS

This year's play at Tewksbury Memorial High School is entitled "Inside/Out." It was put together by Michael Scanlon, a high school teacher who had his students write plays that would, "honestly deal with the problems, dreams and passions of young adults." It is actually made up of three short plays: "Inside/Out," "That Day," and "Who?" The students are now in rehearsal and the play is progressing well.

The director is Donna Tyrrell who is an experienced teacher, director and professional actress. Mrs. Tyrrell and her assistant directors, Marie Lennon and Wendy Latta, are doing a wonderful job with the students.

The cast of this year's play includes: Stephanie Barron, Amy Bissett, Serina Conte, Brian Cooney, Jim Barley, Kathy Freeman, Kathy Galvin, Son Joo Hwang, Lisa Lindgren, Christina Lo Nigro, Thomas Mancellos, Debbie McGill, Jennifer Myers, Craig Parker, Meera Prasad, Lisa Swehia, Sue Tsimtos and Benji Tyrrell.

The show will be presented Friday, April 10 and Saturday, April 11 at 8 p.m. in Tewksbury Memorial High School auditorium. All tickets will be $4 and will be available both at the school at the end of March or at the door. The public is invited to enjoy this delightful drama of adolescent life; it will certainly be worth the trip.

Jean Waugh

Mrs. Jean M. Waugh, a resident of 12 Wildwood St., Wilmington, for the past 18 years, died after a brief illness at Winchester Hospital Sunday, March 29, 1987, at the age of 61.

Born in Woburn, Mass., Mrs. Waugh was the daughter of the late Albert Hulme and Irene (Sullivan) Hulme, who survives her. She also leaves two sons, Jeffrey Williamson of Manning Street, Wilmington and Scott Waugh of Pepperell. One grandson, Jamieson Waugh also survives.

Mrs. Waugh had been a very active member of the Wilmington Spotlighters for many years.

Graveside services were held at the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington, Wednesday, April 1, with the Rev. Michael Stotts of the Wilmington United Methodist Church officiating. Arrangements were by the Nichols Funeral Home of Wilmington.

Salvatore Provenzano

Salvatore 'Sal' Provenzano of 446 Chocorua Drive, Chocorua, N.H. died at Memorial Hospital, N. Conway, N.H. Sunday morning, March 29, 1987.

Mr. Provenzano, 64, was born in East Boston, the son of the late Teresa (DiBello) and the late Joseph Provenzano.

He spent his younger years in the Boston area, and lived in Wilmington for 32 years prior to taking up permanent residence in Chocorua, N.H. eight years ago.

Mr. Provenzano was a veteran of World War II having served in the U.S. Army and had been a member of the Disabled American Veterans, Reading.

He served in the Reading Municipal Light Department for over 30 years and was General Supt. of underground work when an accident on the job caused his early retirement.

Mr. Provenzano is survived by his wife, Dorothea M. (Thomas) Provenzano, his three children, Richard A. of Billerica, Gary E. of Salisbury and Mrs. Dana (Gail T.) Ciardi of Wilmington and his granddaughter, Meghan Provenzano.

Edmund Ronayne

Edmund V. Ronayne, of 24 Saunders Circle, Tewksbury died at Winchester Hospital, Saturday, March 28, 1987.

Mr. Ronayne, 83 years of age at the time of his death, was born in Somerville, the son of the late Elizabeth (Kirk) and the late Edmund Ronayne. He lived in Somerville during his youth and in Wilmington for 40 years prior to moving to Tewksbury four years ago.

Prior to retirement, Mr. Ronayne was owner and operator of Ronayne Furniture Mover of the greater Boston area.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary T. (Scofalti) Ronayne; his four children, Edmund J. of Stoneham, Mrs. Lorna M. White of Beverly, Mrs. Audrey Head of Somerville, and Ms. Mary A. Ronayne of Boston and three grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington on Monday morning followed by a celebrated Funeral Mass at St. Barbara's Church, Woburn. Serving as celebrant was the Rev. Charles Anadore, and concelebrants were the Rev. Richard Brady, the Rev. Edward McMahon, the Rev. Laurence Drinnan and Mons. Paul Donelin.

Interment followed in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

William Allen

William D. Allen, of 42 Carnation Drive, Tewksbury died at St. John's Hospital on Saturday, March 28, 1987.

Mr. Allen, 73 years of age, was born in Boston, Mass. the son of the late Nellie (Hurley) and the late William D. Allen. He lived in Jamaica Plain during his younger years and moved to Tewksbury 42 years ago. Prior to retirement, he was a chrome plater having worked for Allied Chrome Co., Everett for many years.

He was the widower of Mary (Murphy) and Catherine (Welch). Mr. Allen is survived by his five children, James R. of Chalfont, Pa., Robert J. of Pelham, N.H., John T. of Tewksbury, Ms. Millie M. Allen of Tewksbury and Mrs. Melvin (Dorothy) Doucette of Groveland; his 12 grandchildren, one great-grandchild and step-sister Mrs. Hilda Gilday of N. Quincy.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington, Tuesday morning followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Dorothy's Church celebrated by the Rev. Rickard J. O'Donovan. Interment took place in Tewksbury Cemetery. Serving as pall bearers were Peter Allen, Michael Allen, Steve Doucette and Melvin Doucette.

Bernice Anderson

Bernice E. (Neilson) Anderson, R.N. died at the St. Augustine General Hospital in St. Augustine, Florida on Sunday, March 22, 1987.

Born in Wilmington in 1917, she was the daughter of the late Peter and Caroline Neilson. She was the widow of the late Ernest O. Anderson.

She was a resident of 130 Glen Rd., Wilmington until moving to Florida eight years ago.

A graduate of Wilmington High School in the Class of 1934, she then graduated from the Lawrence Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in Medford.

During World War II, she served as an Army nurse in the Pacific. She served with the Yale Hospital Unit, which was the first to land at Guadalcanal and at Saipan.

She then served as a nurse at Winchester Hospital until her retirement in 1978.

She is survived by her brother, Capt. Larz Neilson of Wilmington, her sister, Sylvia D. Neilson of St. Augustine, Fla., and by three nephews.

Funeral services were private.

Tewksbury school news

Teachers and children at the Dewing School have discovered the world of computers at the primary level. Each has been trained in the proper use of the Apple Computers using Friendly Computer or Apple Presents Apple. The first graders are expanding their word recognition with software such as Paint with Words, Word Families and Opposites. Their number facts are improving with Early Addition and Speedway Math. Even students who have difficulties look forward to math on the Apple Computers.

Second graders enjoy Facemaker which begins programming. Space Subtraction and Minus Mission reinforce the math curriculum along with Clockworks for telling time.

Third graders continue to advance their math with Meteor Multiplication. Language arts is an integral part of the curriculum. Word Invasion requires the children to identify the parts of speech with the help of an octopus. Word Master works with synonyms, antonyms, and homonyms. Kidwriter is a favorite. Each student can create a picture and write his own story on the computer. There are other disks which teach prefixes, suffixes and much more.

Many software programs, such as Speedway Math and Memory Match, cover a wide range of levels so that each child can learn at his own level and speed with a computer. Computers make education challenging and fun!

Tewksbury Rabies clinic

Tewksbury Dog Officer, Walter Collins, has scheduled a rabies inoculation clinic for Saturday, April 11, 1987 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the DPW garage, 999 Whipple Road.

Moon S. Kim, DVM, will be the attending veterinarian.

Dogs must be at least six months of age. All dogs must be on a leash. The fee is $6.00.

For the dog keepers' convenience, Elizabeth Carey, town clerk and staff, will be there to issue the 1987 dog license.

Neighbor fights against lot splitting

by Bill Conlon
Two requests to split one-acre lots were shot down by the Tewksbury Appeals Board on Monday night, and Jane Richard was a major reason for the denials.

Last week's appeals meeting was continued until this week when it became apparent at 11 p.m. that the busy schedule could not be completed.

Two neighbors came before the Appeals Board seeking permission to split their one-acre lots split in half to allow construction of additional homes, and Mrs. Richard stood in opposition to both requests.

Aurora Maxwell, 92 John St., went before the board seeking permission to split her corner lot and build a house for her son. Her public hearing was held on March 23. Neighbor Joseph St. Hilaire, also of John Street, had his hearing on March 30, on a request to split his property to build a home for his daughter and her fiancé.

Mrs. Maxwell sought a variance to the zoning by-laws with the reasoning that her son could then live next door and help her with maintenance and lawn chores.

Joe St. Hilaire's argument for subdividing his property, along with a home for his daughter, was that adjoining Hazelwood Avenue has become a hangout for underage "hoods." He stated that putting a home there would deny access to the youngsters and improve the property values in the neighborhood.

"We love the area, but that Hazelwood Avenue has been a thorn," St. Hilaire, 72, told the Appeals Board. St. Hilaire's future son-in-law, Kerry Goodwin, who said he would live in the house adjoining the property, presented two letters and a petition in support of his request. He also claimed that "it would be financially prohibitive" to buy his own house lot in town.

But Mrs. Richard would have none of it.

Mrs. Richard read portions of the town zoning by-laws and Chapter 40A of the Mass. General Laws, outlining the responsibilities of the Appeals Board.

The main thrust of her argument against the proposals was that anyone seeking an appeal must be able to prove hardship on the land and show that the variance would not affect the zoning of the area.

An example of "hardship on the land" might be a house which violates the setback requirement, say by one foot. Instead of having the entire house moved one foot, the Appeals Board is allowed to grant a waiver of that portion of the zoning by-laws. Mrs. Richard argued that "soil hardship" could not be proved in either appeal.

Instead, she said, most of the hardships presented are personal ones. Granting any appeal for reasons of personal hardship "reduces the zoning by-laws to a popularity contest," she claimed.

She also argued that the neighborhood is zoned for one-acre house lots, and that a variance to that by-law would upset the balance of the area. As for the congregation of youngsters on Hazelwood Avenue for illegal purposes, Mrs. Richard said it is a police problem and that "these problems are not for the Board of Appeals."

"I don't think building houses is going to solve the problem," Mrs. Richard said. She pointed out that she has appeared before the board six times in the last two years to prevent neighbors from splitting their one acre lots.

And the board, at least partially, agreed with her.

"When (the lots) were purchased, they were purchased as one acre lots," said Appeals Board Chairman Peter Downing.

Board member Don McKinley, however, lent his support to both requests, and said he would "sleep well at night" for voting in favor of allowing St. Hilaire to split his lot. Downing disagreed, and said he would sleep just as easily for voting against the proposal.

McKinley also complained that only immediate abutters should be allowed to address the board, although the hearings are open to the public, and said of Mrs. Richard's reading of the laws that "I don't like someone to talk down to me about what I'm supposed to know."

During the actual voting, both proposals were defeated by votes of three to two, with Chairman

Downing and board member Scott Consaul voting "nay." Approval of four board members is required to approve a zoning by-law variance.

And while there was some bitterness shown by the losers after the meeting, Mrs. Richard held her ground.

"These (zoning) laws are meant to protect us," Mrs. Richard said. "I shouldn't have to fight to save my neighborhood."

Accreditation process continues in schools

by Arlene Surprenant

The accreditation of Wilmington's three elementary schools, begun in 1986, continues to generate a good deal of positive feedback from teachers, according to coordinator Martha Mahoney.

In an accreditation update at last week's school committee meeting, Mahoney said all staff personnel have "a good feeling of working together" as they share their ideas, assess where their school stands in relation to others, and write out both an individual school and townwide school philosophy.

Her feelings were echoed by School Supt. Robert Horan who said teachers are volunteering "extraordinary amounts of additional time" to complete their part of the process before the accreditation team visits the system next fall.

In 1986, Wilmington was chosen as one of 10 Massachusetts towns to participate in a pilot program under the auspices of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. The accreditation will, in the end, reveal both the strengths and weaknesses in Wilmington's elementary schools.

The three year process has been called "extensive" by Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski, who is serving as overall coordinator. To date, every teacher and many parents are serving on various committees and sub-committees. Aiding Mahoney as committee chairman are Florence Kelly (Wildwood School) and Jim Tildsley (Woburn St. School).

In the fall, a six or seven member team made up of professional educators will visit the schools to review the collected data, observe in classrooms, and make its own assessment.

Shawsheen Tech committee discusses basic skills

by Arlene Surprenant

Members of the Shawsheen Tech School Committee spent a good part of their meeting Tuesday discussing the results of the Massachusetts Educational Basic Skills Test as well as the adoption of a school policy on AIDS.

Though students in the ninth grade fell below the average of schools in like communities, committeemen were quick to point out 30.5 percent of those taking the test were special education pupils.

"Needless to say, when you take that into consideration," commented committee member Kevin Sowyrda, "you are sure to find different results."

Sowyrda said members, too, feel it is important to realize that these ninth graders have yet to go through the school's educational system and, given four years time, would be sure to improve their basic skills scores.

Sowyrda told the Town Crier some members wondered why the Commonwealth doesn't create a test covering occupational skills, which is the school's "objective by law."

"The committee is going to be looking very seriously at the results and the total picture," Sowyrda added.

In other business, Wilmington representative John Gillis initiated a discussion carried over from previous meetings on adopting the state policy on AIDS. Such a policy, it was felt, would guide the committee to follow certain steps should a student come down with the disease.

At this point, an AIDS policy, said Sowyrda, is in the process of being enacted at the Tech.

Computer Protocol introduces universal micro

Computer Protocol Corporation, of Wilmington, has announced the U.S. introduction of a universal micro to mainframe communications board for information transfer between IBM and compatible personal computers and virtually any host computer.

Designated CPBLUE, the product provides connectivity by supporting over seven different protocol/emulations. CPBLUE is compatible with all IBM PC, XT and AT systems and any personal computer designed to be fully compatible with the IBM PC.

According to Wolfgang Schuler, U.S. director of marketing, "CPBLUE is capable of communicating in both directions, and can link with two different mainframes at once if necessary. It can be connected locally via synchronous or asynchronous cable or remotely by modems. If a company has several different computer systems throughout its network, or if its mainframe manufacturer's micro-computer is not up to the standard required, CPBLUE can bring all of the computer systems together through a single PC workstation."

With CPBLUE, users can select which terminal the host computer requires, and deliver the information accordingly. CPBLUE does its own formatting, and has a data transmission speed of up to 19,200 bps - up to four times faster than other boards. A standard RS232C/V.24 interface allows CPBLUE to be connected to a wide variety of networking equipment such as PBX, LAN, WAN, Multiplexors, and other communications processors. CPBLUE also provides the first combination of simultaneous access to wide area and local area networks on one communications board.

Priced at $795, CPBLUE is a totally bundled standard product. There are no additional charges for special features or options. Unlike other boards, CPBLUE slides into a spare slot in the PC and does not require lengthy debugging procedures. New releases of protocols and terminal emulations can be loaded easily by diskette.

Computer Protocol, headquartered in Australia, has recently formed its U.S. subsidiary in Wilmington. CPBLUE will be marketed exclusively through distributors. Computer Protocol will address customization requirements and is willing to enter third party special development and OEM contracts.

For additional information, please contact Wolfgang Schuler at Computer Protocol Corporation, 155 West Street, Wilmington, 617-270-3705

Plastic surgery research lab at Lahey Clinic

A plastic surgery research laboratory that will significantly enhance research on nerve regeneration and other projects has been established at the Lahey Clinic Medical Center. Development of the new facility was made possible by funding from the Eleanor Naylor Dana Charitable trust of New York.

A major acquisition for the new unit is an image graphics laboratory that includes a computerized system for counting axons-- individual strands of nerve fiber--for quantitative analysis.

"The computer technology reduces to several hours a task that previously took several days, and represents a giant leap forward in the clinic's research capabilities in this area," notes Robert E. Wise, M.D., Lahey's chief executive officer and a trustee of the Dana organization. "We are grateful to the Dana trust for its support of this extremely promising research."

"With this much faster capability," says Brooke R. Seckel, M.D., chairman of the Department of Plastic Surgery and Laboratory Director, "we now have a facility that enables us to conduct three or more studies in the course of several months rather than one in the course of two years. In effect, it is a self-contained laboratory in which we will be able to prepare, conduct and evaluate research on nerves, blood vessels and other aspects of plastic and reconstructive surgery."

Dr. Seckel's research for the past several years has centered on the ability of nerve tissue to regenerate, or reconnect successfully, following an injury that severs the nerve. It was believed for many years that nerve tissue could not regenerate successfully, but work by Dr. Seckel and by researchers at other institutions has indicated that this regeneration can be accomplished.

"Standard techniques of simply suturing severed nerve endings together are often unsuccessful due to formation of scar tissue that blocks the regrowth of the nerve," Dr. Seckel says. "We have found that planting the nerve endings within tiny nerve guides can give the nerve fibers a chance to grow through the guides and reconnect with less scarring." And, he adds, "subsequent studies have indicated that the axons may be able to reconnect appropriately to insure proper functioning."

In addition to its funding for establishment of the new laboratory, the Eleanor Naylor Dana Charitable Trust last year funded the hiring of a Research Fellow to work with Dr. Seckel specifically in this area.

Peter Cordeiro, M.D., has been serving in this capacity since July of 1986, and a paper by him and Dr. Seckel is scheduled to be presented at the annual meeting of the Plastic Surgery Research Council in May.

Wilmington police news

Justice can sometimes be quick. Last week the Town Crier reported the Tuesday arrest of two men, in the woods off West Street. Richard Maynard and Dennis Marr were arraigned before Justice Francis Cullen in Woburn Court on Wednesday morning. They were charged with breaking and entry into a West Street home; larceny of property and possession of a stolen automobile.

That same afternoon they pled guilty to all charges and they accepted from the judge a one year sentence to the House of Correction, to be served forthwith.

Both men had prior records. Both men had previously served time at the Billerica House of Correction.

Last week this column mistakenly reported the address of Robert Sferazza as 28 Fairmeadow Road. The correct address is 31 Fairmeadow Road.

Friday morning at 2:15 Officer Robert Richter arrested an Arlington man on liquor related charges. Peter W. Furey, 21, of Arlington was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol. He was held over night, to appear in court in the morning. A passenger in the Furey vehicle was held under protective custody.

At 6:50 a.m. Friday, Officer Paul Chalifour arrested Peter J. Clancy, 24, of Tewksbury. Clancy appeared in the Woburn Court Friday and admitted to sufficient facts. He paid $100 in court costs.

Friday evening Officer Joe Waterhouse arrested Christopher Ford of Dorothy Avenue on a default warrant, issued by the Woburn Court on numerous automobile offenses. That same evening Officer Charles Fiore arrested Mari-Jane Dunn, 22, of Lowell after a computer check revealed her license was suspended. She was also charged with speeding.

Officer Steve Mauriello arrested a Woburn man at 1:30 a.m. Saturday. Terrance McManus of 18 Court Street was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. He was bailed for a Monday appearance in Woburn Court.

McManus was clocked at blowing a .16 on the breathalyzer. Under the new Safe Streets Act he will probably have his license suspended for 90 days.

Saturday morning Officer James Cuoco arrested John Anderson, Castlewood Drive, Billerica at the Lowell Police Department, on the basis of a Woburn Court default warrant.

A Dracut man was arrested by Officer Patrick King on a default warrant. Philip J. Pratt was arrested on the basis of a Tyngsboro warrant. He was bailed to appear in Lowell Court Monday.

Shortly after noon on Monday a Lawrence Street resident interrupted three youths who were trying to break into her home.

After a search through the woods Officer James Cuoco located them behind the town hall. After being identified the three juveniles were arrested and charged with attempted breaking and entering.

They were released to their parents and will appear in the Woburn District Court Wednesday. Assisting Officer Cuoco were Officers Charley Fiore and Chris Neville.

Sentenced for false alarm

A 17-year-old Wilmington High School student received a 14 day suspended sentence to the Billerica House of Correction following his conviction last week, in connection with the pulling of a false fire alarm.

In a trial before Judge Louis Gonella in Woburn Court last week, Shawn Carroll, 17 of 9 Arlene Avenue was found guilty of pulling the alarm at approximately 10:30 a.m. December 17, 1986.

The incident caused the evacuation of the school, and disrupted classes for approximately 40 minutes. It was observed by a member of the town's public buildings maintenance staff.

Carroll's 14 day sentence is suspended until September 1988. It mandates immediate commitment for any other criminal offense which takes place prior to that date.

traffic flow, alleviate the traffic bottleneck, and expand parking facilities in the area. She pointed out the prevailing concern of the chamber's Business Task Force had been the ability of business owners to carry on operations during the construction phase and the relocation of many center businesses.

"The chamber views this as a worthwhile project" she said in summary, adding that there must now be "a coordinated effort" between state and local officials to make the project work.

Both DePasquale and Selectman Jim Stewart assured those in attendance, though they felt the Rust and sediments coat pipes in the cleaning chamber of the Butters Row water treatment plant.

Cleaning chamber must be cleaned every three months

Wilmington's water treatment plant on Butters Row, now a half dozen years old was designed to remove carcinogenic and other materials from the town's water supply. It was the first such water treatment in the United States.

Several dozen similar water treatment plants have since been constructed, and more are in the process of erection.

There is a large chamber in the plant which removes rust and iron ore from the water. The interior of that chamber has a series of racks, constructed of California Redwood.

Every three months that chamber is washed out, by a large water jet. Every three years it is taken apart, and each part is washed.

The chamber was washed out during the middle of March 1987.

bridge needed to be replaced, their boards would support whatever decision is made.

In interviews after the hearing, some officials explained many of the concerns of residents had already been brought before the state DPW in correspondence prior to the meeting. Several residents told the Town Crier afterwards that they had feeling some people in the room were looking out for their own interests and not the best interests of the town.

The status of the Rt. 129 Traffic Project is expected to be decided by the state in two months time. The DPW will accept public comment until April 9.

Council meets Monday

Next Monday April 6, the Council on Aging meeting will be held in the function room at the Buzzell Senior Center. After the business portion of the meeting is completed, candidates seeking election on April 18 will address the group. Invitations have been sent to all candidates. They will be given the opportunity to speak on issues which will affect our lives in the coming years.

The candidates will be seeking the offices of selectman, school committee, redevelopment, housing authority and moderator. It is our responsibility to learn as much about each candidate to make a fair evaluation who will be the best person for the office they are running for, before we cast our vote. If we do not, we have no right to complain after the votes are tallied.

Every year the Council invites candidates to attend the last Council meeting before the election to allow the seniors to ask questions they would like answered. Be at the meeting, let the candidates know the elderly care who the leaders of our town should be. Light refreshments will be served after the meeting.

Anniversary celebration

Thursday April 9, we will be having our first Buzzell Senior Citizen Center anniversary celebration from 1 to 4 p.m. A buffet luncheon will be served. Music will be provided for dancing. It is free to all. If you have not signed up, please do so. It is difficult to order Pair of beagles, one male, one female, black nylon collars, picked up Mar. 12 on Hopkins Street.

The dog officer can be reached by calling the police station business line at 658-5071 or 5072.

For adoption information ONLY, call 658-7845.

food if we do not know the number of persons who will be attending.

Arts and crafts

Many of our seniors are filling up the glass display cases in the arts and crafts room with articles they wish to sell. All articles are marked with the price and the telephone number of the senior selling it. We have very talented seniors both men and women. Allowing them to put their crafts on display, the senior has an opportunity to sell them, giving them the incentive to stay active and healthy making more articles. If you know of any young person who may be looking for a nice gift for themselves or for a friend, tell them about the articles on sale by the seniors at the center daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

These articles help to supplement a senior's income, and are for boys, girls, men and women. The arts and crafts committee has nothing to do with these articles on display as every craft made in the arts and crafts sessions on Tuesdays and Thursdays are put away for the fall fair.

Clothes available

We have many excellent clothes donated every month to the center. At the present time we have many women's winter coats, pants and dresses. Men's suits, sport coats, pants and sweaters. With the outlandish price of clothes if you are looking for any of the above, come to the center, look them over for your size. You may save yourself a good deal of money. Any clothes left in the closets after three months are taken to the Pine Street Inn, by a gentleman who spends a day a week there.

All of our programs at the center are well attended, such as our exercise class, beano, whist, bridge, art class and walking. If you want to join them call the center for the day and time of the program.

Webber Amendment article draws fire

by Arlene Surprenant
A mixed group of builders, petitioners, and interested abutters and residents spoke out, both pro and con, on seven town meeting articles under review by the Wilmington Planning Board at their hearing Tuesday night.

As expected, Article #22 (change in the Webber Amendment) drew its share of fire from the fair-sized crowd. After planner Bill Hooper explained the technicalities and impact of the proposed change in the Webber Amendment on owners of contiguous lots, resident David Hanley gave an impassioned plea to consider his predicament. He said he had purchased a small lot with the potential of one home, gotten a mortgage, went through the perc tests and septic design and now may not have a buildable lot.

"It doesn't seem fair" Hanley told the sympathetic audience, adding, "I waited to hear from the professionals (before building)."

He was backed by several local builders and other citizens who suggested the board compromise by delaying putting the article into effect or tabling it until next town meeting. Chairman Carole Hamilton said her board could consider the suggestions.

Steve Lawrenson persisted in asking for the rationale behind the article. Bill Hooper said he himself had seen too many requests before the board of appeals on grandfathered lots falling under the Webber Amendment. Lawrenson contended the Article would create a "substantial hardship" on many property owners, if passed.

Concerns were also raised on how the state would view the change. Hamilton said the move was not an attempt to restrict affordable housing in town.

Article #37, to rezone 48 acres to PRD for a townhouse/condominium proposal on Andover Street, met with largely favorable reaction from abutters and citizens alike.

Though neighbors said they were still not happy with the congestion at the Andover Street-Rt. 125 intersection (which is under study by the article's proponents), they praised the "professional" presentation and well-laid-out design of the project. They also felt the proposal would fill a need for alternate housing in town.

Diversified housing, said resident Bob Soper, is "an absolute must in the community. This project at least seems to have the potential to move us in that direction."

Lisa Husan, a young career woman, agreed. "This kind of housing is going to give me the ability to stay in this town," she said.

Andover Street resident Peter Breen drew a laugh in referring to traffic problems when he said he wished to express his support for the project "while I'm still alive."

Article #34, to rezone 23 acres off Main Street near Woburn from R20 and R60 to general industry, met with some hostile comments. In the article, petitioner Jay Tighe proposes to build a bank as well as five warehouse and office-type buildings on the 13 acres he owns. Lots owned by abutters will also be rezoned bringing the total to 23 acres.

When asked why he didn't rezone to general business, Tighe replied he was advised to go with nearby zones. Hamilton noted the parcel also bounds a residential zone and "it's a big leap from residential to general industry."

Neighbors spoke out against encroaching industry near their homes and additional traffic feeding into Main Street. Betty Bigwood of Chestnut Street favored selling the land to the proponents of a nursing home in order to keep the land residential.

Two petitioners - John Forest (Article #35) and Al Fiorenza (Article #36) - sought to relocate their businesses due to redesign of the I-93 cloverleaf and the future relocation of West Street.

Neighbors seemed to go along with Forest, who told planners in rezoning 3.85 acres to high density business, "all I'm trying to do is make a living. I'm not out to buy or sell land."

Al Fiorenza had the same opposition he had when he submitted this article before voters at previous town meetings. Though it was stated that Fiorenza was trying to address abutter's concerns and go for more restrictive zoning, neighbors still spoke out against rezoning from R20 to general business.

Some people questioned why the same article could come before voters so soon after defeat. Hamilton explained that as long as her board recommended approval it could keep coming up for a revote, leading one resident to cry out, "Then what good is a town meeting?"

Petitioner Dan Ballou argued in favor of Article #33, to allow the conversion of dwellings containing at least 1,600 square feet from single family to two family homes. He asked primarily that dwellings existing prior to April 25, 1987, instead of the current date of January 1, 1965, be allowed to change.

"I'm trying to raise an issue I think is not right in this town," Ballou told the planning board. He based his feelings on his own experience before the board of appeals to allow his parents to share his home. When he saw board members hedging, he said, he withdrew his appeal request and decided to try to change the zoning bylaw instead.

"This is a single family town and that's the way I'd like to see it stay," said Arthur Smith, adding he felt it was "inappropriate" for a selectman to sponsor an article which might turn Wilmington into a Medford or Somerville. Ballou reported this was an article sponsored by him as an individual and he would not violate any zoning bylaw or do anything to hurt the town.

Article #21 would take away the builder's option of coming in for a site plan review. Instead, a site plan review would be required for any additions to buildings falling under the bylaw. This article, sponsored by the planning board, generated no discussion.

Reading Light wants to talk

Wilmington is an issue that must be tackled. That was the decision of the new five man Reading municipal Light Department, Monday evening.

"The record is that we haven't communicated with them for the year that I have been on the board" said Frederick Nemergut. "We have to do it. We have to initiate a line of communications with officials in the Town of Wilmington as quickly as possible. It is essential to open up dialogue."

The report of the meeting, which was printed in the Reading edition of the Times Chronicle, goes on to quote Nemergut further.

"I can't see how either side can benefit from the situation. If communication can be improved there is an opportunity for no losers. I hope we move along that path."

Frank Gorgone, who had defeated the former chairman (Crooker) in the recent election voiced agreement with Nemergut.

"I don't know how set they (Wilmington) are, but I think some of the issues can be resolved. I can't see what we can lose. At least we can take the initial step to open dialogue. It should be done before they go to Town Meeting."

RMLD General Manager Norbert Rhinerson told the board that he did have lunch with Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski a while ago to discuss the situation. Stapczynski had said he would get back to Rhinerson in two weeks. "It has been six weeks and I haven't heard from him," Rhinerson said.

The board decided to get in touch with State Rep. Geoffrey Beckwith, who represents Wilmington's Precinct Three, Reading and North Reading. Beckwith was described as being very concerned with Wilmington's desire to leave the Reading Light, and hope was expressed that Beckwith would assist the RMLD board in contacting the proper Wilmington officials to open up a dialogue.

"It may come to a point where we have to have numbers" said new member Phil Pacino. "Then we can get to the (Wilmington) Town Meeting and present numbers at that point. From our standpoint we are dealing within a month. One board member should appear at the Town Meeting."

There was a feeling on the board that blocking the vote will be impossible with such a short time period in which to work.

New member Barry Hampson seemed to see the dispute as an emotional issue.

"They are not upset with the rates or the service at all. Reading makes money and they are saying 'we can make money, too.' I can't see how Wilmington Town Meeting members can vote for it without having all the facts in front of them."

Pop Warner
signup

Wilmington conducted its' annual Pop Warner meeting last Thursday night and a board of directors was elected to oversee the football season for 1987. Yes, a football season. It has been three long years without youth football in Wilmington.

After several meetings, signup sheets were placed in Wilmington gyms to get a better idea of the interest within the town. The response has been just great, so on April 25 registration will take place. Details will follow at a later date.

The board is planning to practice at the Glen Road field and to have lights installed so that Friday night football will be possible. The group also plans to hold clinics, hosted by a local college, and perhaps play a bowl game at the end of the season.

Anyone interested in helping or getting their child on the signup list should call Jack Holloway (657-8685), Jim Stewart (658-2670) or Len Howard (658-9824).

Please watch the Town Crier for further details and dates of upcoming events.

Janet Crowley is the other half of the very successful Wilmington field hockey connection at Bentley College. See story this page.

Wilmington duo earns letters

Janet Crowley and Kathy Robinson, both of Wilmington, have been awarded varsity letters for their participation on the 1986 Bentley College field hockey team.

Crowley, a sophomore, was an instrumental part of the defense which allowed only 15 goals in 19 games. Crowley blocked two sure shots herself to record two defensive saves.

Robinson, also a sophomore, used her speed and talent to enhance the Falcons offense, contributing three goals and two assists. With the graduation of the top four scorers, Robinson will be looked upon for offensive leadership for the Falcons next season.

Bentley finished the regular season with an outstanding record of 13-1, won the NCAA Division III Northeast regionals and concluded the year by participating in the Final Four. Overall, coach Linda Macdonald's team was 16-3.

A finance major, Crowley is the daughter of George and Trudy Crowley of 6 Wilton Drive, Wilmington. She is a 1985 graduate of Wilmington High School.

Robinson, the daughter of Richard and Marilyn Robinson of 6 Carolyn Road, Wilmington, is undecided on her major. She is a 1985 graduate of Wilmington High School. Both are lettering for the second time.

TMHS track preview

Veterans will lead Redmen

The Tewksbury High School boys' track and field season began on March 16 with snow on the track and a temperature hovering around the freezing mark.

Many boys who were with the team that day have since retired to the good weather and easy life, leaving 39 boys committed to bringing pride to themselves and their school during a rigorous two and a half month season.

Captains for the 1987 season are David French, previously captain of this year's varsity football and wrestling teams, Robbie Busch, also captain of the 1986-87 cross-country and indoor track and field teams and Timothy McCaffery, a top player on the 1986-87 varsity soccer squad and captain of the indoor track and field team.

The above three athletes will lead a mixed team of returning veterans and game newcomers through a 10 dual meet season and several state and area meets.

A scrimmage this Thursday, April 2, will match the Raiders of Central Catholic against the Redmen at Tewksbury in a 3:30 p.m. meet.

The regular season opens at home on Monday, April 6 as non-conference opponent Westford comes to the TMHS track. On April 8, Tewksbury travels to Lowell for its' first conference meet, a 3:30 p.m. encounter.

Many of this year's participants will be called upon to perform in two or three events per meet. An individual can participate in two field events and one running event or two running and one field event.

A meet is scored by a 5-3-1 basis for first, second and third place, with the winner of a relay getting five points. With 145 possible points in a meet, a team would need more than 72 1/2 points to win a meet.

At the moment, Tewksbury has 15 seniors, 10 juniors, nine sophomores, and five freshmen. Key senior returners will be David French - the javelin, Robbin Busch - mile and two mile, Tim McCaffery - the 880 and mile, Brian Aylward - the pole vault, Tim Boudreau - the high jump and several running events.

Kenn Coviello will run the long jump and sprints (Coviello is the team's leading point getter from 1986), Ron Maddox, 440 yard dash and probably in the hurdles, as well as the long and triple jump, and Eric Meininghaus, an overall excellent track and field man, will be a key participant in the hurdle events (110 meter high hurdles and the 300 meter intermediate hurdles), as well as any of the jumping events and relays.

Other seniors participating on the team are Keith Bennett, distance events, Ronny Crowell, weight events, shotput, javelin and middle distance runs, Brian Donahue, discus and shot put, Kirk Goldsworthy, distance events, Richard Howard, weight man and distance man, Joe Kelley, shot put and Ed Melanson, hurdler.

Returning juniors include Billy Donahue, pole vaulter and middle distance man; Michael Hennessy, a high jumper and middle distance man; Dave McSweeney, high jumper and relay man performer; Jeff Stone, pole vaulter and middle distance man and Brian Sturtevant, distance runner.

Other juniors include Joe Andriolo, long jumper and triple jumper as well as middle distance performer; Danny Britten a weight man, Derek Doherty, a jumper and middle distance performer; Danny Fiore, hurdler and jumper and Chris Macie, shot put performer.

The team's younger performers include sophomores Jim Avery, Karl Bateson, Tom Canarelli, Jeff Carr, a returning track turned weight man (javelin-discus), Tom Hooper, Pat McCaffery, a returning distance performer, Jim O'Callaghan, Brian Raymond, and Kevin Breuer.

Freshmen include Glenn Harris, Kevin Kelley, Jeff Rideout, Chris Sands and Chris Woodsen.

Tewksbury will compete in the MVC Small School Conference with Dracut, Lawrence, Methuen, Tewksbury and Wilmington.

Tewksbury's schedule will include the four Small School opponents as well as cross-over meets versus Large School foes Lowell, Billerica and Chelmsford.

Non-conference opponents include Westford, Tyngsboro and Haverhill.

Softball coaches

Tewksbury girls' softball has openings for coaches and assistant coaches for both the junior (ages 10-12) and the senior (13-15) divisions.

Any coach with a daughter signing into the program will automatically have the daughter on his or her team.

Wilmington Rec coming events

Spring program openings

The Wilmington Recreation Department still has openings in the following programs.

Tennis lessons, special needs Shriners circus trip, Red Sox games May 24 and July 18, gymnastics, karate and CPR.

T-ball sign up is also in progress. This instructional program for both boys and girls, grades kindergarten through two will be accepting late registrations through next week. Stop by the recreation office 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. to register for any of these programs.

Strawberry Bank

The Wilmington Recreation Department will visit this historic restored area of Portsmouth on June 27 to shop, tour historic houses, and enjoy the beautiful gardens at Prescott Park. After lunch, we'll cruise to and around the Isles of Shoals and return to Wilmington via a ride along the rocky coast of N.H. Call the Recreation for details, 658-4270.

Easter coloring contest

The Wilmington Recreation Department has a new contest for boys and girls in pre-school through grade two. It's an Easter Bunny coloring contest and there's no fee to enter. Just come to the Recreation office in the town hall weekdays from 8:30 to 2:30 and pick up your entry bunny. The contest closes Friday, April 10.

Easter egg hunt

The annual Easter egg hunt will be held Saturday, April 18 beginning promptly at 2 p.m. at the town common. The location has been changed from the Glen Road Recreation Area because town elections are being held at the town hall that day.

The Easter Bunny cordially invites all little Wilmington boys and girls ages seven and under to join in on the annual treat. There will be special prizes for the most "Easterly" decorated baskets.

Raindate will be the next day (Easter Sunday). If conditions are still not acceptable, the following Saturday, April 25 will do.

Red Sox tickets

See the Sox in action at Fenway Park in Boston. The Recreation Department has tickets for the Sunday afternoon, May 24 game against Chicago, and the Saturday afternoon, July 18 game against Oakland.

Cost is only $6.00, which includes your bus ride into Fenway. Registration is taking place in the Recreation office Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Tennis lessons

The Recreation Department is offering a spring session of basic tennis instruction for youth and adults. The five week program will be held at the Woburn Street courts Saturdays April 25 through May 23.

Call the Recreation Department for details or register at the Rec office from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Discounts

The Recreation Department has discounts for Florida, including the Magic Kingdom and Epcot Center, Sea World, Busch Gardens. Drop by the office to see what is available. We also have discounts for the Showcase Cinemas, including Woburn and Lawrence.

Stop by anytime between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to purchase these tickets.

ON YOUR FEET BUNIONS

Bunions are a common deformity of the Big Toe are the joint at the base of the big toe. The deformity is primarily caused by inherited bone structure and can be aggravated by shoe wear.

The problems associated with bunion deformities are usually a painful "bump" or enlargement on the inside of the foot at the base of the big toe and a deviated or crooked Big Toe that pushed against or under the second toe.

Correction of the deformity ranges from removal of the bump and realignment of the big toe, to more sophisticated procedures utilizing stainless steel screws.

Following a thorough examination, we will discuss our findings and treatment modalities. All these procedures are performed in the office operating room under local anesthesia. Advances in operating techniques provide selection of the best procedure(s) and minimal post operative discomfort.

Dr. Kenneth M. Leavitt and Dr. Mark Pietz Podiatric Physicians/Surgeons

Complete medical and surgical care of the foot and related ankle structures. In-office X-Rays, blood work and surgical care provided.

Bay State Games fifth season

The Bay State Games, Massachusetts Olympic Sports Festival, announced its fifth season this week with the release of the 1987 Bay State Games Entry Booklet. The booklet outlines the entry qualifications and tryout procedures for athletes in all 20 sports offered in the games.

In 1986, 10,000 athletes competed in regional tryouts across the state, vying for a spot in the Bay State Games Finals. This year, the tryout numbers should increase substantially with the addition of ice hockey, racquetball and women's open field hockey to the sport roster. The games return to Boston July 9-12, and will feature 4,500 of the state's very best high school and collegiate athletes at the finals.

Entry booklets are available at no charge to interested athletes from all high school and college athletic directors and various coaches. The entry booklets are also available at all Bank of Boston branches statewide.

A nominal entry fee carries the athlete through all stages of the games competitions, rewarding him or her with a Bay State Games jacket if he or she continues on to the finals and a t-shirt to all who tryout.

Gold, silver and bronze medals are presented to the top finishers in each event.

For more entry information, contact the Bay State Games at (617) 727-3227.

All-women race April 26

The Greater Lawrence YWCA has announced its plans for the third annual all-women five mile road race, Sunday, April 26, starting at 10 a.m.

Sponsored by Lady Finelle Cosmetics, the course will be around the Lawrence common, up Haverhill Street, down Marston and General Streets, to Union Street, then Essex Street, to Franklin Street, then Common Street, to the edge of the common.

Entries will be accepted in three age divisions: 25 and under, 26-39, and 40 and over. This year there will be an added division for walkers. The overall and age group winners will receive awards and the first 200 entrants will receive cosmetics and t-shirts.

Deadline for pre-entries is April 18, and post-entries will be accepted until race time. The entry fee is $5.00.

For more information, please contact Margaret Whitesell at the Lawrence YWCA, 687-0331.

Nurses run April 5

April 5 marks the date of the fifth annual run for nurses co-sponsored by the Omni-Parker House and Nurse Mates. At noon, more than 500 nurses will unite at the Omni-Parker House to run 4.3 miles through downtown Boston to benefit the American Heart Association.

This event has been festive as well as profitable. The nurses have raised over $60,000 in their four year history. This much needed money helps the American Heart Association to provide for vital research, education and community services. For their fundraising efforts nurses will be receiving exciting prizes such as a weekend for two at the Omni-Parker House, a Nurse Mates gift pack and much more. Door prizes will also be awarded.

Put on your running shoes and join the nursing community in a demonstration of dedication to a healthy lifestyle. If you are a nurse and haven't been running lately, sponsor a runner and help nurses and the American Heart Association fight heart disease, the nation's number one killer.

For more information, please call the American Heart Association at 449-5931.

Grammar school hoop tourney

The Salem State College women's basketball team will be conducting the first annual Lady Viking Grammar School Basketball Tournament at the Salem State College main campus gymnasium from April 3 to April 12. The tournament will be divided into two age groups - Division I will feature fifth and sixth grade players; while Division II will feature seventh and eighth grade players. The entry fee for each team is $35.00.

Coaches wishing to enter a team should complete and return the application forms by 1 p.m. April 2. Coaches will be contacted when tournament pairings are finalized.

Teams will be selected on a first come, first served basis until both brackets are filled, so forward your application as soon as possible to the following address: Women's Basketball Attn: Tim Shea, O'Keefe Center, Salem State College, Salem, Ma 01970.

What else is new?

By BRUCE N. MORANG

Sifting through the ashes of Monday's town election, always a messy job, is tinged with a bittersweet feeling this year.

Reading voters have a remarkable record of being remarkably laid back in their regard for town government. It occurs to this community newspaperman that as long as the streets are plowed, the rubbish picked up, and lights go on when you flip the switch, folks could care less about the picky details of making all of that happen.

So it is that we're hard put to decide whether to applaud the 14 percent of the electorate that cared enough to vote on Monday... or the 86 percent who said the hell with it and stayed home.

But to the ashes.

Last Monday's ashes tell us that the town's love-hate relationship with its Municipal Light Board has taken a peptic turn. Back in our Pleistocene when we had a coal-fired electric generating plant on Ash Street, Reading emerged from the kerosene lantern era and became a sophisticated, well-lit community, so much so that it was soon able to extend its largesse to neighboring Wilmington, North Reading, and even half of Lynnfield. It became a unique business to be in. It has made money, lots of money. It has become our goose... and its golden eggs are all ours.

But somewhere along the line, things got out of whack. Wilmington exploded with industrial, commercial and residential growth. So did North Reading. Reading Municipal Light expanded to meet those growth needs: you get more customers, you enlarge the store. Matter of fact, Wilmington grew so much it now consumes 60 percent of the power distributed by Reading Light. Any goose would be proud of that egg.

And then along came the OPEC oil crunch, the restless dream of Seabrook, a worrisome nether agency called the Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Corp. (MMWEC). Clamshell Alliance dissidence, the mystery of "fuel surcharges," and many years of conflicting pronouncements that we were power poor and power rich. Through it all, the goose produced.

Now Wilmington says it wants out. It wants its own goose. Denied (they say) access to policy input, or even (they say) polite dialogue with the Reading Municipal Light Board, Wilmington proposes to create its own light department, or failing that, to marry Edison, New England Electric or whatever.

The Reading Municipal Light Board counters (in effect) with the bromide that Wilmington will never be able to afford to buy its way out of its marriage with Reading Light. Wilmington will go to its April Town Meeting and appropriate $125,000 in ubiquitous "study" money, but they're kidding themselves, says Reading Light. Besides, says Reading Light, we give them better rates and better service than they'll ever get anywhere else.

Maybe so. But the fact remains Reading's goose is being coveted. Whether or not the goose can or will be cooked is anyone's guess. One verity: only the lawyers will make money on this one.

So it is that Monday's election ashes say that Reading voters expressed concern over the status of the town's productive goose. They exercised that concern by deposing John Crooker who had served Reading Light for seven terms, 21 years, many of them as chairman of the three-member rate-setting and policy-making board that has led Reading Light.

Thanks to the new charter, Reading now has a five-member Municipal Light Board, and (thanks to Monday's election) three new voices on the board. All five are Reading voices, of course, and that means the only real hope for remedial dialogue with Wilmington, North Reading and half of Lynnfield, rests with the charter writers' hope that a bigger board will mean a more "open" and democratic Light Board process.

Simple examination of Monday's numbers show that John Crooker was deposed by attracting only 855 votes. Frank Gorgone got 978 votes. Frank Gorgone won. Thus in a rare, rare instance of forcing change, Reading voters spoke and said (among other things) they want this Wilmington mess resolved.

So what else is new besides a new five-member Light Board?

Consider that Reading must begin this new political era with a new Town Manager, a new Superintendent of Schools, a new Town Clerk, a new Town Moderator, a new General Manager of the Municipal Light Department, and 44 new faces at Town Meeting.

Just keep your eye on that goose while we get all this newness sorted out.

Reproduced on this page are two well written articles which appeared in the Reading Times Chronicle last Wednesday.

Bruce Morang wrote the article which is labeled OPINION. He is the editor of the Reading paper and is a versatile user of the editorial quill. Gary Demopoulos is a reporter for the same paper. It is he who is erudite in his display of the temperament of Wilmington's Town Manager, Buzz Stapczynski.

Morang and Demopoulos are concerned with the difference of opinion in their town and Wilmington vis-a-vis electric power. It is a difference of opinion that dates back three and a-half years to August 1983. Wilmington officials and Chamber officials had been trying to have a meeting with the board of the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) since some time in January 1983.

Boston Edison had increased its bills to Reading. The notice arrived in the third week in December, retroactive to October 1982. The RMLD board posted notice of new light rates, effective on January 1. There was a notice in the Town Crier on December 29, 1982. The RMLD also included a notice in its January billings to customers.

The hoped for meeting finally occurred in August 1983. The town manager and Selectmen Cain and Doucette represented the town of Wilmington. Representing the Chamber of Commerce were President Nicki Johnson, Executive Director Joan O'Rourke, together with Bob Atkinson of Compu-graphic and Michael White of Sweetheart Plastics.

This paper was not present. There was practically no conversation in that meeting, as the story is understood by this paper.

The board for the RMLD did not engage in conversation. Members of the Wilmington delegation were informed that they could state their problem to the superintendent of the RMLD.

The Wilmington delegation went to that meeting of the RMLD to talk. That opportunity was denied.

Now there is a new light board in Reading, with three members out of five being new members. Maybe now there will be a conversation. At least one of the new officials has said he would talk.

But meanwhile, because of the attitude of the RMLD board the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce has spent about $40,000 in a study of the Reading Light, and of the possibility of the two towns parting company, electrically speaking.

One of the sore points, from the Wilmington viewpoint, is that Reading became a part of MMWEC, without any consultation to its three "customers," Wilmington, North Reading and part of Lynnfield.

There will be bills to be paid. MMWEC is a community of Municipal Electric Light Companies in Massachusetts, pledged to support the nuclear power plant at Seabrook, in New Hampshire.

There are Wilmington officials, both in the town and in the Chamber of Commerce who shudder at the thought of those bills.

Wilmington had no representation. Wilmington will pay 60 percent of the extra cost, from MMWEC.

If Wilmington withdrew from a situation that was not of its making, then the people of Reading will have to assure the cost of the MMWEC bill.

That is the part that can be painful to the residents of that town.

Wilmington's mood:

'Let's talk or walk'

By GARY DEMOPOULOS

WILMINGTON — Wilmington town officials are still looking intently into the possibility of pulling out of the Reading Municipal Light Department and receiving its electric power from its own system.

But a Wilmington town officer held out some hope the two towns could still "communicate" and iron out their differences on RMLD rate-setting and policy-making.

Meanwhile, a special article aimed at facilitating Wilmington's pullout is on the town warrant for the annual Town Meeting there which begins April 25.

"We're moving straight ahead on it," said Wilmington Town Manager Reginald "Buzz" Stapczynski. "We need a second vote on it. When that happens, then we can start the wheels in motion."

The Town of Wilmington has already cast one vote to withdraw from the Reading system. The idea has been looked at for over a year and Stapczynski feels that it could be a viable option.

"I wouldn't be talking about it if it wasn't," the Town Manager said. "If we set up our own facility, revenues should meet expenditures the first year. In the long term, it would be one heckuva asset for the Town of Wilmington."

In addition, the Selectmen have included the sum of $125,000 in the Fiscal Year 1988 budget to help fund a study to look into the matter, with more money appropriated for FY'89.

"I figure it will cost us about $300,000 over the next couple of years," said Stapczynski. "We have $125,000 appropriated for this year and an additional amount the following year."

Relations between the RMLD and Wilmington soured two years ago over electric rates. When asked whether the results of Monday night's election in Reading, where Frank Gorgone ousted longtime Light Board member John Crooker and Philip Pacino and Barry Hampson each earned seats, would change feelings between the towns, Stapczynski said, "I hope it is a positive move. I think it is a tribute to the Town of Reading to have someone serve as long as he (Crooker) did."

Stapczynski also maintained that Wilmington is ready and willing to talk.

"Our door has always been open and never been closed," he said. "I'm sure the Selectmen of Wilmington would welcome any discussion. I think that is the way we have to operate in this realm. We should be able to communicate."

If approved by a second Town Meeting vote, the town will begin to assess the value of RMLD's physical plant in Wilmington and appraise the system, then go to the Legislature for a special act that will allow it to form its own light department. And, it is pretty much guaranteed that lengthy legal battles between the two towns will follow.

"Unfortunately, this could cost both towns a lot of money," Stapczynski said. "But, it should be a profitable venture for the Town of Wilmington. We have to take the bull by the horns and make changes."

Should Wilmington be able to form its own light department, it could have large consequences as far as Reading is concerned. Currently, 60 percent of the power supplied by RMLD is sold to Wilmington. That would greatly reduce the amount of money that RMLD pays to the Town of Reading each year. Residential rate payers would then have to bear a greater burden of expenses.

Stapczynski also noted that 33 percent of that 60 percent of Wilmington's power comes from just 12 Wilmington companies.

Statement by Reading Light Commissioners

The following statement was issued by the Reading Municipal Light Dept. on Tuesday, March 31:

We want to address the issue of Seabrook and its relationship to the Reading Municipal Light Department electric rates.

Although Reading is the largest Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Co. participant, our share of Seabrook is 7316 KW or only five percent of our current power capacity purchases.

Reading's share of the cost of building Seabrook is $30,000,000. However, the total impact of the Seabrook costs on Reading's 1987 revenue requirements is 7.2 percent or 0.59 cents per KWH. This is expected to be eight percent or 0.71 cents per KWH in 1988.

Reading's average revenue per KWH during 1986 was five percent lower than it was in 1981 due to falling oil prices, the availability of low cost hydro power from both New York and Canada, and nuclear power from Canada and Connecticut.

Reading's present bills already include 80 percent of the projected costs associated with Seabrook. By 1988 all of the Seabrook costs will be in our rates except for fuel and operating expenses.

If Seabrook is not allowed to operate, Reading will have to find the equivalent amount of capacity from other sources to meet its customers' requirements, and this will be more expensive than the Seabrook fuel and operating costs.

Reading is working to expand its Peak Load Reduction Program to reduce the need for new capacity purchases to meet its customer requirements. This program already has the capability to reduce our system peak by 7000 KW or near the total entitlement in Seabrook. An interruptible rate is being developed to encourage more customers to participate in reducing our need for additional generating capacity.

Family Support program

You can help a local youngster!

By JIM ROUILLARD

They began official life in a Cambridge crib closet.

And though that was a scant few years ago, their plans are now a good way past infancy: bold, well-considered and well-matured.

They write openly of tragedy, cruelty and crime, freely admitting the problems they face are both stubborn and epidemic.

Yet they are full of a curious joy.

Family Support Programs of Eastern Middlesex, Inc. (FSPEM), the result of three years' careful gestation, is something of a fledgling agency, made up of a group of people who have thought big even while forced to breathe small.

Their plan of approach, to supply foster homes to area adolescents in need, is both fresh and ambitious, and the fledgling is now ready to fly.

Family Support Programs has attracted a reasonably mighty board of directors (including two honorables — a mayor and a judge) who are just a few among those excited by its vision.

Executive Director Lynne Lees, former area director of the Commonwealth's Department of Social Services, said that well before her retirement from the DSS she saw the exploding need for quality homes for adolescents and the co-incident inability of state and existing agencies fully to meet that need.

Juvenile Court Judge Marie Jackson of Cambridge, herself an adoptive parent of one and foster parent of four, and described by Lees as "very outspoken on how agencies don't understand the needs of foster children," was the first person to join the Family Support Programs' Board of Directors, Lees said. The agency has also attracted Somerville Mayor Eugene Brune to its board. It is the staff of FSPEM which will bear the primary burden of the task before them, however, and that staff is both experienced and well-equipped, though it may at first seem top-heavy with social service expertise, since its licensed social workers outnumber its administrative assistant by a clear three-to-one.

It will need that expertise, for its aims at first seem well-nigh enormous — and some people have called its plan flatly impossible.

Yet an interview with the staff provides conviction that they will sustain their promise. FSPEM's goal is, after all, to provide quality foster homes for a group traditionally considered among the hardest of all to place.

But Lees is not daunted, despite the discouragement she has received from some fellow professionals outside her agency.

Why do she and her staff feel their approach will work?

A key element in their scheme for success, according to Nancy Hoffman, director of Adolescent Services, will be the projected size of the caseload for each full-time caseworker. The average caseload in most agencies is 20 to one. FSPEM aims for five to one.

"A caseload of five adolescents," according to Lees, "will allow a good social worker to give attention when and where it is needed, always including the teenager's own family; it will allow time for a thoroughly trusting relationship to grow quickly, to provide the milieu for healthy development by the adolescent."

Still another essential element is extra financial support to the foster parents, beyond room and board (paid under contract with State agencies). The extra financial support will go towards telephone, transportation and clothing needs. For those foster families who need this help, Lees anticipates extra payments of about $100 per month per child.

And that's not all. FSPEM intends to focus as well on "the very specialized problems of young girls who are pregnant or who already have infants," according to Lees. "Many of these young mothers need shelter with loving families, to sustain and guide them into responsible parenting." Finally, a further program "standing in the wings" is a

FM TALK: This past winter was a particularly arduous one for all of us to get through. Goodness, it seemed as though it would never end, with its frequent battering snow storms, unceasing frigid temperatures and bone-chilling winds. But, alas!, spring has finally arrived (let us hope for a snow storm-free Easter, something we New Englanders haven't always had the pleasure of experiencing). We were so excited by the recent stretch of early spring weather, and the sight of such pleasures as buds appearing on the lilac bushes in our back yard, convertibles with their roofs down, and neighborhood kids tossing a baseball around, that we decided to ask around to find out how spring-time fever is affecting others.

Cathy M., of Wakefield, told us, "I've taken my bike out almost every day this week. It's so exciting to ride around the lake and see so many people already catching some rays and working on an early tan. Can you believe how beautiful it's been lately? It won't be long before the sail boats will be out on the lake, and I'll be wearing my bathing suit at the beach!"

Now there's a young woman who's thrilled by this nice weather! So was another young woman by the name of Michelle Mead whom we tried to speak to at her office in Lexington, but according to her colleague, she was taking her break outdoors in order to also catch some early spring rays of sunshine. Perhaps we'll reach her later when the clouds eventually move back in.

Reading Art Assoc. sale planned

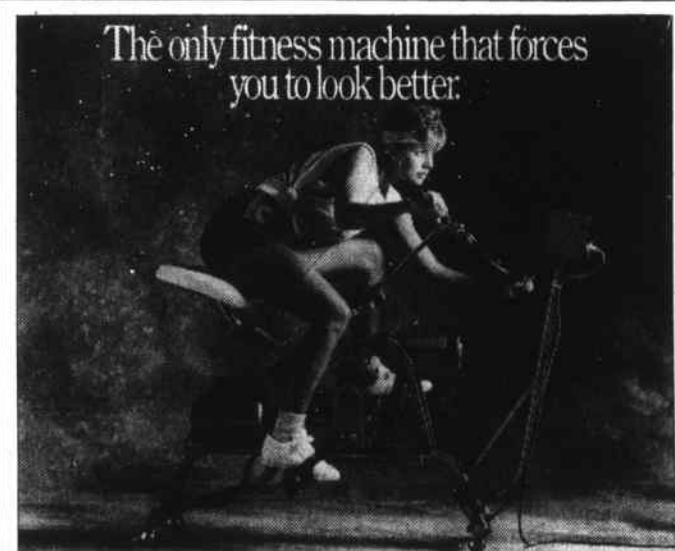

This weekend the Reading Art Association will display the work of more than 30 artists at the Annual Small Treasures Art Sale. Ninety original paintings will be offered for sale at this special event to be held Friday, April 3 from 8 to 10 p.m. and Saturday, April 4 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the First Congregational Church, Sanborn Street, Reading. Proceeds from this sale help the Association make its annual donation to the Reading Scholarship Fund.

All paintings are framed, reasonably priced, and suitable as gifts. The artwork of many well known local artists is represented in the collection. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

Linda L., of Woburn, was available to tell us, "we've just bought a new house, and we're already busy with some major spring cleaning and remodeling. My husband and I are planning to add an addition this spring, so this good weather has prompted us to call the contractors to get the ball rolling. The people who lived here before us left a hibachi grill in the back yard. I never noticed it until the snow went away, but once I discovered it all I could picture was having loads of cookouts this summer. It won't be long now."

Two more of our friends, Al Donnelly and Julie McNeil, of Woburn, are busy getting their pool ready and also putting on an addition to their house. "I can't wait till the room is finished and the pool is opened," Julie told us. "Then you can come over for a cookout!" We'll be there with champagne to toast the occasion!

These kids learn about disabilities

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Teachers call it the best program to ever enter their classrooms. Parent volunteers call it the ultimate emotional high. But most importantly, the kids remember it forever. Such superlatives don't do justice to the overwhelmingly enthusiastic responses sparked by Learning About Disabilities, a hands-on program begun in the Wakefield elementary schools last year to provide children "with the experiences which will foster sensitivity" toward the disabled people they will meet throughout their lives. The program is firmly rooted in curricula developed by the Meeting Street School in East Providence, R.I.; the Understanding Handicaps Program in Newton; and Understanding Handicaps/Reading. It is unique in that it is supported by the Eastern Middlesex Council for Children, part of the Massachusetts Office for Children.

"The key element of LAD is that it is action-packed so the kids can learn conceptually as well as in concrete ways. They must become the kind of disabled person they are studying, and they must be able to distinguish between a disabled person and a person with a disability," says EMCC Community Representative Marie Cassidy. "The kids need to learn that we're all the same inside but some of us have disabilities which challenge us to complete tasks in different ways. We focus on the positive."

LAD began in Wakefield when resident Mary Smalarz trained through the Newton program as an instructor. Chairperson of the Chapter 766 Committee of the EMCC and a registered nurse/instructor at Regis College, she designed the program specifically for the Wakefield community. For a year before it actually began in the schools, she and Cassidy met with the superintendent, principals, PTO's, and teachers.

In addition to receiving "phenomenal" support "every step of the way" from Judy LeBlanc of Understanding Handicaps/Reading, the Chapter 766 Committee conducted its own research within Wakefield. To ascertain the attitudes of Wakefield students toward the "handicapped," the committee sent a questionnaire to the junior high school. The students checked off "true" or "false" to the following statements — and maybe learned a little, too: 1) When I see a person with a seeing eye dog, I should show that I am friendly by patting the dog; 2) Most people in wheelchairs are retarded; 3) Being around people with handicaps makes me uncomfortable; 4) If I had to choose a handicap, I would rather be deaf than blind; 5) It hurts handicapped people to be teased or ignored; etc.

"Third and fourth graders are the perfect ages for LAD. They're very sensitive, open, and creative," says Smalarz. "They're just starting to put it together, and the best part of the program is to see them blossom while we're with them — and to hear from the teachers that what we're saying has an impact on their interactions

THE AWAKENING

We've weathered the winter
And braved the storms
Protected each other on face and on form

Joyous Christmas and also the New Year's came full of love and good cheer

And the birthdays of presidents who we all revere.

Then came St. Patrick's the Irish man's saint

We watched the parades without a complaint.

Now we've had enough of cold winter's blasts

Easter and spring are both here at last!

Parent Aide Network, designed to assist families whose young children might otherwise have to be removed and placed in foster care.

John Moore of Winchester, recruiting and development specialist for the agency, said about a third of the children who need foster care in the commonwealth are teen-agers — yet only one in 10 qualifying homes is suitable for teens.

"Families have scattered all over the place," Moore said. "I could take a handful of gravel and scatter it and hit a relative in every direction. But that has changed."

Moore underscored what he sees as a primary national need, an area in which his agency can help by strengthening the "extended family," through foster care.

And Moore, himself a parent, sees a further advantage to being a foster parent: "You don't have to feel guilty. You didn't bring the person to this point, but you can ameliorate his or her situation."

The private, tax exempt FSPEM, first housed in the confines of a crib closet at Catholic Charities of Cambridge, later expanded — still cramped but content — to a 10 by 14-foot space under the low eaves of Arlington's Park Avenue Congregational Church.

Family Support

But they move today to a wider and more soaring site: the tower room of the Payson Park Church in Belmont, which may best reflect both the height and the scope of their ambition.

As their name implies, they will provide quality help for area adolescents and families within the Eastern Middlesex region.

Unquestionably part idealists, the staff at FSPEM are also pragmatists, with a clear as well as a compassionate eye to very real social problems.

Their aim is not a new one — though it has some new twists — and it is one they see as both challenge and joy, venture and adventure.

Director Lees, who has been the prime force in moving FSPEM from concept through crib closet and catch-all under the eaves, phrases her hope in even broader terms, smiling as she confesses:

"People have been telling us we're crazy to try to place teens. But we're banking on the fact that there are people with energy who are willing to contribute to the health of the world."

The health of the world? Talking with Lees, Hoffman and Moore of their affirmation that useful change can be wrought by individuals willing to make a difference cannot help but recall earlier architects for social change, like Charles Dickens or the English poet William Blake.

And just as Blake's imagery is sometimes grim when he writes of "The Little Boy Lost," or "The Little Girl Found," the modern situation for troubled or homeless teens is no less grim in its way than it was for past generations.

But it is fine indeed to know that people like the staff at FSPEM are willing to demonstrate commitment to the gentler phrases which Blake employs in a stanza from "The Divine Image":

"For Mercy has a human heart,
Pity a human face,
And Love, the human form divine,
And Peace, the human dress."

The health of the world? It is a very large concept, to which most of us would give, at least, lip service.

But the energies and hours of hard work by the staff and directors of Family Support Programs go well beyond lip service.

Their own talents and experience are clear and well-demonstrated. Now they must bank as well on even larger concepts: the hope and belief in the commitment of others — as they freely and confidently ask for your inquiries, help and support.

Campership program seeks volunteers

It may be difficult to believe but summer is right around the corner. It is also the year-long focus of a special group of people. The Campership Committee of the Eastern Middlesex Council for Children is a group of dedicated volunteers committed to the belief that each child deserves the opportunity to enrich their growth through rewarding camping experiences. Over the past four years, efforts to raise several thousands of dollars have ensured a summer camp placement for over 110 children.

Now, we need your help! If you can afford 2-3 hours per month to volunteer with this grassroots, community-based organization we can use whatever time or expertise you can offer. Serving the towns of Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield, we need assistance in all areas of fundraising: distributing flyers, soliciting goods, writing notices and press releases, making posters and attending planning meetings.

Our major fundraising activity will be an Auction, to be held in the Spring. We are now accepting any donations to this event which promises to be a great deal of fun, as well as very worthwhile. A call to Linda Malonson at 665-3439 or Marie Cassidy, Community Representative, at 245-5267, will provide you with any information you need, or suggestions you may have.

Our next meeting is scheduled for April 2, at 9:30 a.m. at the Council for Children Office at 7 Lincoln Street in Wakefield. All are welcome!

Road salt is Audubon concern

As homeowners rake accumulations of highway sand from their front lawns, and wait for the last patches of snow to melt from their gardens, some may notice that their water bills contain warnings about elevated sodium levels in their drinking water. Increased sodium levels from the tap indicate that road salt applications in Massachusetts have long term environmental affects well beyond the last winter snow storm.

"Spring is the time to start planning for next winter," says Dr. Betsy Colburn, Water Pollution Policy Specialist for the Massachusetts Audubon Society. "Now is the time to initiate local road salt reduction programs to ensure that our municipal Highway Departments will be ready to implement salt management programs for next winter." A vote by community residents at annual town meeting or by chief elected officials, can establish a committee to study local road salt use and begin the process of evaluating a community's needs to protect water resources.

"By identifying sensitive areas, assessing potential sources of contamination by road salt, and evaluating alternatives to high salt use, communities can develop snow and ice control policies that protect both water resources and driver safety," comments Dr. Colburn.

Massachusetts uses more road salt than any other New England state. To date, eight public drinking water supplies in five Massachusetts communities have been closed due to contamination from road salt. Hundreds of private wells have sodium levels above the state's standard. At least 3 million gallons per day of potable drinking water in Massachusetts have been contaminated by road salt.

Addressing these concerns, the Massachusetts Audubon Society has recently released a publication entitled, "Road Salt and Groundwater Protection," the ninth in a series of Groundwater Information Flyers. This twenty-page illustrated booklet reviews problems associated with drinking water contamination or heavy road salt use in Massachusetts. The booklet discusses alternatives to road salt and suggests methods that communities can adopt to reduce threats to water supplies while still maintaining safe winter driving conditions.

To order the flyer ($1.50), contact Massachusetts Audubon's Public Information Office, Lincoln, MA. 01773, (617) 259-9500.

AARP meeting April 10th

Sociability is the pleasant order of the day for the Friday, April 10, 1:30 p.m., meeting of Chapter No. 1124 of AARP Inc., to be held at the Melrose Highland Congregational Church, 355 Franklin St., Melrose, with president Carolyn Norton of Melrose presiding.

The Program Committee has given over the program to Louis Gardner of Reading and his Silvertones for dance music of the 30s, 40s and 50s to add lightness to the sustenance. This third annual pie social afternoon is a fund-raising event for the Chapter at $1.25 per person. Some 36 members are baking and donating their home made pies. A good time should be had by all.

During the business session, the chairman of the Nominating Committee, Mrs. Lucile Boyd of Melrose, will present the first report of AARP nominees for the 1987-88 year. The election will take place at the May 8 meeting.

Last month's day trip to the New England Aquarium was a fun-filled and eventful day for the Chapter members, with a delicious lunch enjoyed in the Harbor View Room at the Aquarium. Coming up for May 28 (Thursday) is a North Shore jaunt to Beauport House in Gloucester, a seaside lunch at the Easterly Inn, with roaming or shopping time at Rockport in the afternoon, a full day! Complete details will be given at this April meeting, with reservations and/or checks in payment made with Carol Johnson (call at 665-1796). Limit will be 44, and deadline is May 8. Now is the time to reserve your place.

AARP meetings are held on the second Friday of each month, September through June, at the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church, 355 Franklin St., Melrose. If there is no school in Melrose, there will be no meeting. New members and guests are always welcome to attend any meeting. Call Helen Fazio, Membership Chairman at 438-3473 for further information about joining Chapter No. 1124.

300 EVENTS

A free Spirit of Massachusetts Spring and Summer Calendar of Events is now available from the Massachusetts Division of Tourism.

The 1987 April through September calendar lists more than 300 fairs, festivals and celebrations in the cities, seashore and countryside of Massachusetts. Highlighted events include: the A.C.C. Craftfair in West Springfield.

Boston's Harborfest, Old Sturbridge Village's 19th Century Fourth of July, a Teddy Bear Rally in Amherst, and music, theatre and dance festivals in the Berkshires.

Also included in the Spirit Calendar is a Whale Watch Guide listing 20 whale watch cruises from Cape Ann to Cape Cod.

A free Spirit Calendar, is available at state tourist information centers, by calling toll-free in Massachusetts: 1-800-632-8038; other northeast states, 1-800-343-9072; or by writing: Massachusetts Division of Tourism, 100 Cambridge St., 13th Fl., Boston, Ma. 02202.

FROM BLOOMSBURY TO BOSTON

On Thursday, April 23 at 6 p.m., the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum presents its final lecture of the spring season. Sir Peter Shephard, the renowned landscape architect, will speak on his recent garden designs.

Sir Peter practices landscape architecture from his firm in London and teaches at the University of Pennsylvania. He will speak of his work at Charleston, the home of Bloomsbury artists Vanessa Bell and Duncan Grant, the American embassy in London, the new museum in Williamsburg, and his latest project; designing gardens for the Gardner Museum.

A reception follows the lecture. Parking is courtesy of Simmons College, off Avenue Louis Pasteur. General public welcomed, $7.50. For more information please call the Membership office, 566-5643.

Wakefield students learn about disabilities long after we've left the classroom.

EMCC involvement makes LAD unique. The first program in which a local state agency has hooked up with a school system, it has reached the attention of the state Office for Children and of Governor Dukakis who look upon it as a "new model for this type of partnership." LAD is divided into five units: Visual Deficits, Hearing Deficits, Physical Limitations, Mental Retardation, and Invisible Disabilities (asthma, diabetes, epilepsy). Starting with the most easily understood, most obvious, and most "acceptable" problems, the program develops toward more complex disabilities. The units are taught by volunteers from the community who receive special training through workshops, classroom observation, and planning sessions. Each unit is presented in two one-to-two hour sessions for a total of three-to-four hours for each group of disabilities.

A major goal of LAD is to impress upon youngsters the fact that a disability is not a contagious disease. "Guest speakers who have the particular disability under discussion provide the most heartrending moments of our program," says Cassidy. "Fourth graders get right down to it. They don't worry about peer pressure, they're genuinely concerned about people, and they'll ask anything. The most concrete challenging activities are the most successful. The kids experience frustration and learn patience if they try to button a shirt with only one hand, and picture the school bus honking outside.

"One of the most popular activities," she continues, "is learning sign language and actually communicating with a deaf visitor. Our teachers have even taken the program beyond our original syllabus — having their students correspond with a special needs class or review television movies that deal with particular disabilities." Some specific program objectives are that children be able to: define and articulate feelings and fears about a disability, the latter through understanding basic related anatomy and physiology; discuss similarities and differences among people; experience frustration, dependence, helplessness, and finally pride in accomplishment, despite a disability; demonstrate proper handling and care of adaptive aids, devices, and appliances; and, most importantly, get past the disability, know the person, and share the experience outside the classroom.

Riding in a wheelchair, walking with crutches or a cane, and reading Braille; eating chocolate pudding or walking through a maze while blindfolded; being asked to quickly list seven parts of the body that contain three letters (the killer here is "jaw") — these experiences etch themselves indelibly into the sensitivities of very receptive youngsters. Smalarz says, "We always emphasize how to build positively upon the strengths we have."

"Relaxation techniques for children with asthma can be used by any child. Since everyone can relate to feeling a little different sometimes, feelings are very important parts of our discussions. Communications skills can always be sharpened in creative ways — for example, the deaf use sign language, lip reading, and many non-verbal skills. We all need each other."

When students are asked to solve a math problem or connect dots while listening to a tape loaded with raucous background noise, they feel the frustrations of "distractibility." When, having recently learned cursive writing, they are asked to write their names backwards, in cursive, with the hand they don't usually use, they groan, they laugh, and they remember.

A college student who has already won all kinds of photography awards tells them what it was like to grow up dyslexic, unable to read, with other kids calling her "dummy" every single day — and they take the story away with them, forever. As do the teachers and the parent volunteers.

"The amazing part of the program," says Cassidy, "is what the volunteers walk away with, the tears in their eyes. LAD taps places within them, tears and hopes, that have remained hidden and unexpressed. Many are responding to cruelty that they witnessed when they were children, and now they're able to do something about it. They bring their own unique personalities and experiences to each activity — they're inspired and inspiring. And they're having fun."

The immediate goals of Cassidy and Smalarz are to bring LAD to every elementary school in Wakefield, and eventually to the other EMCC communities with no programs yet: Melrose, North Reading, and Stoneham. Understanding Handicaps is already firmly established in Reading elementary schools. Smalarz speaks for kids, teachers, volunteers, and herself when she says, "The effects of LAD are cumulative. Each unit builds upon the last and teaches something different. It's been a truly rewarding experience — I'm learning more from it than I could ever teach anybody."

Vincent Gatto opens office in Reading

Vincent J. Gatto, M.S., P.T. is pleased to announce the opening of his practice, Reading Physical Therapy, located in the Reading Medical Center, 36 Woburn St., Reading. The practice will strive to continue to provide quality services which the Center is known for in Reading and surrounding communities.

Vincent Gatto was a 20 year resident of Reading before earning his master's degree from Columbia University in New York City. He has a diverse background in physical therapy including past staff therapist positions at the Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn. Mr. Gatto has also served as a physical therapy consultant to long-term neurological care facilities, industrial rehabilitation programs and a health club.

He is available for treatment or consultation by appointment. For further information call Reading Physical Therapy at 944-6564.

Retired Men hear storyteller

A master storyteller, William J. "Red" Slavid, harbor master of Haverhill, showed 293 retired men why he is known all over the country. Recipient of numerous awards and honors, "Red" will soon be the subject of a Hollywood movie. His primary business is rescuing people in trouble. For this mission he owns and operates planes, helicopters, boats, rescue vans, etc. He even teaches water and air rescuing. He told many interesting and amusing stories. He received a standing ovation, a tribute rarely given by this organization.

Before the speech, the club greeted the following visitors: Lorne C. Davis of Middleton, Walter C. Clines Jr., Clarence A. Clapp and H. Andrew Brodecki, all of Reading, John DeWilde and Earl Richard of Lynnfield, John Killoran of Worcester, William J. Dooner of Melrose, and Bill McBay, Donald Pelletier and George T. O'Brien, all of Wakefield. They then welcomed the following new members: Lane E. Wheaton of Woburn, Walter Geddy of Stoneham, Vincent McNeil and George L. Dogkins of Reading and Kenneth C. Newman, Frank Connolly and Robert Brodebank of Wakefield. Sixteen birthdays were celebrated and the group mourned the passing of three members: Harold Bursey (1903-1987), Anthony Libertore (1899-1987) and Merton Barslow (1893-1987). Door prizes were won by Edgar Tracy and Malcolm Blue.

The chairmen of the various special interest groups gave reports. The band is rehearsing every Monday morning for their concert to the membership in May. The Camera Club will meet April 7 at 9 a.m., at the First Parish Congregational Church in Wakefield (where the club holds its general meetings). Larry Barbuto will talk and show slides of Alaska. At the last meeting, Ray Smart gave a presentation on Arizona. The Stamp Club will meet April 14 at 1 p.m., at the Wakefield Library. The Travel Club is still taking reservations for the trip to the Cape April 28 and 29. Overnight accommodations at the Mariners Inn is only $25 per couple per night. Henry Murphy, travel chairman, wants deposits of $100 per person for those who signed up for the five-day trip to upstate New York and Vermont.

John Vernon, a member, will be the speaker at the April 8 meeting. His subject will be "Czechoslovakia." All retired men in commuting distance of Wakefield are welcome at 9 a.m. at the church.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Woodchips wishes all 'past,' 'present,' and 'future' Girl Scouts of America a "Happy 75th Birthday" of their wonderful organization. I am very proud to say that all my sisters and nieces were Girl Scouts.

I was a Boy Scout, a member of the Beaver Patrol, Troop 17. I didn't earn even 'one' merit badge, and one of the reasons why was because I couldn't light a fire by rubbing two sticks together (even if one of the sticks was a match). In a Boy Scout Jamboree competition I tied a timber hitch around a log, then the next scout tied a square knot, then 10 more scouts tied different knots and the last one was to pull the log over the finish line, and my 'timber hitch knot' came apart. My mother who was watching tried to console me by saying, "There was probably something wrong with the 'log'."

My Aunt Nina of Wilmington had another excuse for repeating, "You're a failure kid and you'll never amount to anything." Many years later she still insists that I'm good for nothing. Last week she said, "I read Woodchips every week, tell me, who writes it for you?" She didn't realize that what she said was a compliment.

Four young scholars will represent North Reading schools at the regional Spelling Bee in Methuen on April 9. They are: Justin Peterson, Melanie DiVasta, Katy Wiklanski and Regan Burke. In a Spelling Bee when I was in school, my word to spell was Mississippi. "Miss Sullivan," I said, "is it the river or the state?" "What in the world is the difference," she exclaimed as she opened her desk drawer to get an aspirin. "Well, the river is much longer." In exasperation she shouted, "Well spell that, and I hope you 'drown' in the middle of it!" She didn't mean it folks.

I received a ransom note saying, "We have your mother-in-law, bring $500 by Tuesday or we're bringing her 'back' Thursday." I sent back my own note saying, "Can you keep her until I pay the $500, ten dollars a week?"

A bachelor is a fellow who wakes up in the morning with 'all' of the blanket.

Holly is a great big beautiful Labrador Retriever owned by Tom and Carrie Mooney of Winchester. I see Holly 'taking' Carrie for a brisk walk along Forest Street almost every afternoon. When Holly needs washing, it's Tom's turn to take one end of the leash because Holly's afraid to go through the car wash, 'alone.'

An Arabian oil baron has offered pharmacists Jimmy Fanikos of Melrose, and Stephen Rappa of Malden, 10 million rubbles for exclusive rights to their recent discovery. They stumbled upon a secret formula of castor oil and gasoline that will make any old clunker of a car 'Go-o-o faster!'

A sign in a barbershop said, "Five chairs - no waiting." What it didn't say was that there was only one barber.

Dennis Perkins graduated from Northeast Vocational at Wakefield. He took a 'crash' course as an auto body mechanic. He received the 'Fender Bender Award.'

Folks, please be kind to so called Sunday drivers, they could be Friday drivers who are trying to find a place to park.

One of the many chores that my mother had as a young girl in Ireland was to open a gate each morning and let a small flock of sheep go out to pasture. She would amuse herself by holding a stick across the gateway. After three or more sheep had jumped over the stick she removed it and each of the other sheep would jump over an 'imaginary' barrier. "Don't be sheep and do things because others are doing them," she would repeat over and over again. "Do them because they are the 'right,' 'decent,' and 'honest' things to do."

Peter Newman of Woburn was installed as captain of the Wilmington Company of Minutemen. He was sworn in by Jim Banda, who also installed Lt. Dan Lyon, Adjutant Sgt. Doug Murray, and Company Sgt. Mike Shine. Good luck men, remember, Paul Revere's ride and the horse were both

'Nightmares.' How long a 'minute' is depends on which side of the bathroom door you're on.

All the women tennis players that I have seen are as 'pretty' as a picture. Wilmington's Patty Conant proves it. Patty has compiled an outstanding 9-3 mark with the Bryant College women's varsity tennis team. I recall years ago at Longwood, Manuel Ortega and a German ace were playing a championship match when a Monarch butterfly lit on the net. Both men instantly stopped playing, then cautiously approached the net, extended their rackets and the butterfly walked onto one of the rackets. They then walked to the sidelines where it flew up and over the spectators who stood up and cheered. Who won the match? Who cared, they were both champions as far as everyone present was concerned.

St. Patrick's Church in Stoneham celebrated its 100th anniversary. Bishop John Mulcahy, with the Pastor Mark Hannon, and other church, town, and state representatives along with parishioners watched as James Eicher and Frank Woods rolled out the cornerstone from the base of the church. The 100 year old time capsule's many artifacts were of tremendous interest to all. Rev. Jon Martin of St. Patrick's Church said a suggestion box would be put out to the public to see what they wanted to include in the 'next' time capsule.

May I suggest a 'Bingo' card, a 'Frisbee,' and a copy of Woodchips. One hundred years from now some people may go 'nuts' trying to figure the three of them out.

My Aunt Nina, who is looking over my shoulder as I'm at the typewriter said, "I'm going nuts 'now' trying to figure out your Woodchips column."

Woodchips joins the clergy and all the parishioners in thanking God for His beautiful gift, St. Patrick's Church in Stoneham.

Congratulations to Kristen Seabury of Stoneham High School who has been selected by the Boston Globe as 'Athlete of the Year.' Kristen Seabury, "you're the greatest."

A "piggy-back" railroad is called "Ham Track." Spring is here at last and motorcyclists can take off their 'long Honda wear.'

Poem

"Thank God It's Spring Again"

Have you ever walked a country road, in the springtime of the year?
And seen the pretty flowers grow that bring us all good cheer?

Have you ever walked a sandy beach and watched the waves ride high?
Perhaps a lonely gull flew up then circled in the sky.

You've seen, I'm sure a baby smile cradled in its mother's arms.
There's nothing in the world that has,
a new born baby's charms.

These many things are nature's way to tell us one and all of the beauty that's all around us that we thought we lost last fall.

Oh Lord! As we look in wonder as spring slowly unfolds,
We know God's in his heaven and He is the guardian of our souls.

Anthony Manconi

Got a few moments to share?

Got a few moments to spare and want to help a good cause?

Here's a charity that organizes volunteers to send cards and letters to sick and handicapped youngsters throughout the United States, and as far away as Australia. Presently they are looking for help to mail off Easter greetings. If you'd like to help, they'll send you the name and address of a child.

Write them, they don't have a large office staff and you'll need to send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Send it to: Mail for Tots, 24 New Chardon Street, P.O. Box 8699, Boston, MA. 02114.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

to all
New England Memorial Hospital
Patients and Visitors

Due to the construction of our new medical office building and improvements to the roads around the hospital, access to our Emergency Entrance has been rerouted.

All vehicles must circle around the south end of the hospital campus and in back of the main building to reach the Emergency Entrance and Emergency Parking Area during the construction period. Temporary signage has been installed to provide clear directions for emergency and routine vehicular traffic.

There will be no disruption of any services to our patients.

Thank you for your cooperation with NEMH in its effort to better serve the needs of the community.

HEMLOCK or PINE? RED or BROWN? THE FACTS ABOUT BARK MULCH

To make a good mulch, bark should be aged at least 3 mos. The bark that comes off the logs in cold weather so called "Winter Bark" is the best. Hemlock turns red as it ages. So does red pine and red birch. Pine bark turns brown and is heavier than hemlock. Although hemlock bark is colorful, it is comparatively light and fluffy and used by itself it will become dry and lose its color. Pine, however, holds more water, controls weed better, and lasts longer. The best "RED BARK MULCH" (a term we originated some years ago) is a well planned mixture of both hemlock and pine in the proper proportions for best color and best landscaping qualities. We stockpile both hemlock and pine all winter and in the spring offer a premium "RED BARK MULCH" at no extra charge.

Bob R., of Winchester, a student who lives in the Back Bay while away at school, said, "I love the arrival of spring because it means everybody will be out along the Charles River after classes. It's great just to toss around a frisbee and check out the girls. The girls in Boston this time of year are awesome. The hardest part is leaving Boston to work back home for the summer. Then again, the girls back home aren't too bad either."

We were in Boston the other day, and we happened to notice several of the cafes along Newbury and Boylston streets have already set up their outside tables and umbrellas. The afternoon we were walking along Newbury Street we observed dozens of people enjoying the good weather by sipping on their favorite liquid refreshment, snacking on some light food, and carrying breezy conversations. Others, by themselves simply thumbed through magazines, read a newspaper, or were engrossed by a good book.

Richard G., of Stoneham, informed us, "I'm thinking about entering the marathon this year, so I've been spending a lot of time outdoors getting myself in shape. I love to run, and now that the good weather is here, I'm out running as often as I can. Whenever I think spring, I think the Boston Marathon."

For Barbara and Kevin J., of Woburn, thinking spring means looking forward to opening day at Fenway Park. "We've just come back from Florida where we got a chance to take in a Red Sox exhibition game. It was great! If we have the opportunity, we'd like to go down every March to see them practice. You have a better chance of actually meeting some of the players down there. But of course, there's nothing like opening day at Fenway. We'll be there, even if Roger Clemens isn't."

Ray R., of Burlington, owns a sailboat in Newport, R.I., and the arrival of spring to him first means hard work. "I've got to get my boat ready for the summer, and that takes a lot of time and work. I'll be putting it in the water May 1st, so that doesn't give me a lot of time. But it's all worth it. There's nothing like that first sail of the season. Once you've got your boat out at sea you forget all about the effort it took to get it ready."

Carol F., who recently moved to Wilmington from the mid-west, said, "I've heard so much about summertime in New England. I can't wait, especially to see Cape Cod. At first I thought people around here were prejudice towards the Cape simply because they come from around here. But I've seen some pictures of the Cape, and I'm beginning to think what I've been told about it is true. I can't wait to hit the beach in Provincetown, at the very tip of the Cape, and to be able to say that I looked back at the entire end of the Cape from that point."

The arrival of spring doesn't always conjure up happy feelings, however. Take the owner of a local garage, who told us the arrival of the good weather means more work. "Even though inspections are spread out over the whole year now," he said, "it seems like everybody wants to get their cars fixed at the same time. As soon as the weather gets good, everybody wants a tune-up or new tires. It's great for business, but I sure as heck don't get much time to enjoy spring the way other people do."

"I finally got around to washing my car the other day," Mike R., of Burlington, told us. "I was beginning to think that I wasn't ever going to see the paint again. It was impossible to keep it clean all winter, so it was fun to finally get a chance to wash and wax it and to make it look new again."

Jim E., of Woburn, said, "Spring means getting my yard in shape. It seems like you're never going to get it back in shape, but then once you've got the lawn raked, the trees pruned, the driveway swept and the aluminum siding washed off, the place starts to look decent again. Before long I'll have the lawn furniture back out, and I'll be cooking steaks on the grill."

That reminds us: it is time to break out the Sears lawn mower

★ POSTAL EXAM ★

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY CLERK-CARRIER ($9.92 hr.)

The WOBURN Post Office will be accepting applications for the Clerk-Carrier exam (tentatively) April 13 thru 17.

The Clerk-Carrier position currently pays $9.92 per hour plus excellent benefits. Serious postal candidates should begin preparing now because people are hired for these positions based on their exam score. You should not miss your chance to fill one of these highly desirable jobs.

POSTAL EXAM WORKSHOP ADVANTAGES OF ATTENDING

Our founder, Stephen McNally, is the foremost authority in America on gaining postal employment. His credentials are matchless. Mr. McNally is a former postal employee, current Ph.D. in Education, author of 4 postal study guides, and has averaged 100% on 7 of the various postal exams.

Over a two-year period, 80% of the Clerk-Carriers hired in one city used Mr. McNally's methods. Our former office manager currently works for the Post Office, and the current office manager and her assistant both scored 100% on their first CC exam in the summer of '85!

"This workshop was well worth my time and money. Using Mr. McNally's techniques allowed me to score 100% on my first Clerk-Carrier exam!" - K.A., Summerfield, IL

THE EXCLUSIVE PEPC DOUBLE GUARANTEE: 1. At the end of the workshop, if you do not think these methods will significantly increase your score, your money will be refunded. 2. You will enter into a written contract guaranteeing you a score of 95% or higher on the exam or your tuition will be completely refunded.

WORKSHOP TUITION IS $30.00. Payable in cash, Visa, MasterCard (no personal checks). This fee includes the 2 1/2 hour workshop, the textbook Clerk-Carrier which includes 3 complete tests, diagnostic practice exercises, tips to make you testwise and 10 additional practice tests.
